NIPPONESE DESCEND FROM NORTH, SOUTH ON LUNGHAI SECTION

Chinese Forces Broken in Two-way Drive to Railway Junction.

SHANGHAI, Feb. 14.—(Monday)—Japanese armies rolled relentlessly from north and south today toward a frontal junction on China's vital Lunghai railway, crushing their stubborn Chinese foe between the two halves of their viselike offensive.

On the northern side of the Lunghai corridor into central China an army of 15,000 Chinese had been shattered. Reports were that a Japanese vanguard had reached the Yellow river and was preparing to cross for an assault on Kaifeng, Honan provincial capital.

On the southern side massed artillery and planes had broken Chinese resistance on the north banks of the Hwai river, permitting establishment of a broad front while a spearhead column drove further north along the Tientsin-Pukow railway to stab at Suchow, heart of the Lunghai defenses.

"Big Push" on. Japanese military authorities said their long heralded "big push" was under way in all sectors of the central front—auspiciously launched by yesterday's sweeping victories.

Chinese reports virtually confirmed the Japanese claims but insisted Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek's troops were falling back in orderly fashion to take up new positions.

Two railways, the Tientsin-Pukow line intersecting the Lunghai at Suchow and the Peiping-Hankow line intersecting the Lunghai some 200 miles to the west at Chengchow, were the principal avenues of the Japanese drive.

Fall of Puyang. Puyang, about 70 miles northeast of Chengchow and some 60 miles from the vital East-West railway fell, however, to an overland thrust and advance detachments drove on toward the broad Yellow river lying between them and the Lunghai.

Kaifeng, possibly the objective of this column, lies near the river and on the Lunghai between Chengchow and Suchow.

The overland forces were operating on the left flank of the Peiping-Hankow railway column which yesterday defeated 15,000 Chinese in northern Honan province. The railway column was marching on Chienan, about 60 miles north of Chengchow.

Plant-to-Prosper Campaign Wins Backing Of Representative Owen and Newspapers

Georgia Editors Continue to Praise Program of The Constitution.

By GLADSTONE WILLIAMS. WASHINGTON, Feb. 13.—The Atlanta Constitution's Plant-to-Prosper campaign was heartily endorsed here by Representative Emmett M. Owen, of Griffin, only Georgia house member on the agricultural committee.

Mr. Owen, who as a member of his committee's subcommittee, came to Washington long before congress met in special session last year to draft the new farm control bill, said he had been following The Constitution's Plant-to-Prosper program closely and that the competitive spirit aroused among agriculturists of the state would be of inestimable value to all farming interests.

"With the Georgia State College of Agriculture, the Georgia Agricultural Extension Service and our entire state press co-operating in the movement," Representative Owen declared, "nothing but a healthy reaction can follow our cotton, peanut and fruit growers, cattle raisers and others engaged in tilling the soil."

More Than 159. "With the full 159 counties of the state taking an active interest, I am sure that when the record blanks have been distributed by all co-operative agencies, many farmers will receive awards for excellent scores. I wish the contest every success."

Mr. Owen, who has been ill of influenza for the past month, said the live at home feature for farmers of his state, with inducements to conserve the soil, diversify crops and improve farm homes, struck him as being more than timely.

"I shall expect at least one of the farmers of my district, the fourth," Representative Owen said, "to win one of the 33 cash awards, one of the eight silver trophies, or one of the other 577 honors which The Constitution is offering to those farmers who make the best records."

PRESS CONTINUES PRAISE OF PLANT-TO-PROSPER

Progressive Georgia newspapers last week continued to devote much news space and editorial praise to The Atlanta Constitution's Plant-to-Prosper campaign.

Comments follow:

Editor Thomas M. Seawell, of the News, Winder, Barrow county:

ENTRY BLANK

The Atlanta Constitution's "Plant-to-Prosper" Competition.
Mr. Walter S. Brown,
State Director of Extension Service,
Athens, Georgia.

I want to enter the 1938 "Plant-to-Prosper" Competition as a contestant for the $3,500, trophies and certificates of honor offered by The Atlanta Constitution.

My name is _____ (Please print)

My address is _____ (Town)

_____ (County)

Enter me as (check division you wish to enter)

Landowner, operating own farm with no tenants [ ] or sharecroppers

Farm operator (for tenants and landowners with one or more tenants) [ ]

Tenant-sharecropper (for any tenant and sharecropper where no sub-tenants are employed) [ ]

The size of my farm is _____ acres, with _____ acres in cultivation.

This entry blank must be filled in by the head of every farm family and sent to Mr. Walter S. Brown, state director of extension service, ATHENS, Georgia, in order for that family to be eligible for awards for following a program of LIVING-AT-HOME, DIVERSIFIED FARMING, SOIL CONSERVATION and HOME IMPROVEMENT.

Signing of this blank involves no obligation on the part of the farm family. It is necessary, however, that everyone competing for the awards send a blank to Mr. Brown.

the support of civic organizations and leaders in every section of the state, promises to be the greatest incentive to an improved agricultural condition in the history of the state.

"It is generally conceded that the only hope for the farmers of the south is to about face and make the job of earning a living from the soil of the farm through the planting of food crops the first and ultimate aim of all farming."

"Providence decreed that the soil of the earth should produce the necessities of life. It only remains for man to do his part toward securing them."

"Strong Indorsement."

Editor John N. Holder, of the Jackson Herald, Jefferson, Jackson county:

"From every section of Georgia there is a strong and enthusiastic indorsement of The Atlanta Constitution's Plant-to-Prosper campaign. It is receiving active support from newspapers, agricultural experts, bankers, businessmen, industrial leaders, and hundreds of farmers."

"The Georgia State College of Agriculture and the Georgia Agricultural Extension Service are co-operating with The Constitution, and will prepare records for the enterprise and distribute blanks to agricultural and home demonstration agents in every Georgia county."

"The Constitution will give cash awards to farmers of the state who make the best records during the year in living at home, soil conservation, crop diversification and home improvements."

Many Cash Prizes.

"There will be 33 cash prizes, totaling $4,000, eight silver trophies and 577 other honors for white entrants, and there will also be similar prizes for colored farmers. The contest is open to landowners operating own farms with no tenants or share croppers; farm operators with one or more tenants; and sharecroppers."

"Georgia farmers need to break away from the one-crop system by producing the food and feed crops needed to support Georgians, and thus keep at home the millions of dollars spent annually out of the state for products that can be easily grown on the farms in Georgia."

"As will be seen in another column of the Herald, the National Bank of Athens, one of the strong financial institutions of northeast Georgia, is co-operating with the Plant-to-Prosper contest, and is offering additional cash awards to farmers in Jackson, Clarke, Oconee, Walton and Oglethorpe counties."

"Opportunity for Farmers"

E. H. Thomas, Hart county agent, in the Sun, Hartwell, edited by Louis L. Morris:

"The Plant-to-Prosper contest by The Atlanta Constitution is an opportunity for Hart county farmers. Hart county can win first prize in the Plant-to-Prosper program. The reason why Hart county can win is because many of the live at home program for many years. The entire contest is nothing more than a live at home contest."

"Every farmer in Hart county can enter. All it costs to enter is to say you want to live at home. That means making a better living."

"Why can't we have 1,000 to enter from Hart county?"

Money in Farmers' Pockets.

Editor L. L. Patton, of the Lanier County News, Lakeland:

"Farmers, here is something that will put money in your pockets and fill your pantries with the choicest of things to eat. The Atlanta Constitution is putting on a farm program of its own, in which several thousand dollars in cash awards will be paid to Georgia farmers who at the end of the year can produce the best records in crop diversification, land conservation, home beautification, etc."

"You who desire to take advantage of this splendid contest will please produce Frank A. Neely in his indorsement of The Constitution's great program says that in 25 years that Georgia will be the richest section in the entire world if Georgia soil is only given half a chance."

"Someone has said that nothing is quite so powerful as an idea whose time has come. We believe this splendid idea of The Atlanta Constitution has now reached that stage."

J. R. DUKE IS DEAD

Funeral Services Tomorrow for Drug Salesman.

J. R. Duke, 48, drug salesman with Abbott Laboratories, died yesterday morning at a private hospital after a brief illness.

A resident of Atlanta all his life, Mr. Duke had lived at 623 Rosalia street, S. E., for many years. He was a Mason and a member of the Grant Park Methodist church.

Surviving are his wife; two sons, Joel and Robert, and two sisters, Mrs. J. E. Garst and Mrs. Troy G. Nabors, all of Atlanta. Funeral services will be held at 2 o'clock tomorrow afternoon in Spring Hill, with the Rev. L. B. Jones officiating. Burial will be in East View cemetery.

BODY OF W. F. HIGGINS TAKEN TO SAVANNAH

The body of Walter F. Higgins, 59, former manager of the Ajax Tire & Rubber Company, who died Saturday at his home, 508 Clifton road, N. E., after a two-week illness, was taken to Savannah, Ga., last night for final rites and burial.

A native of Savannah, Mr. Higgins had lived in Atlanta since 1917. He was a member of the Sacred Heart church.

CITIZENSHIP MEET TO BEGIN TONIGHT

Judge Blanton Fortson Will Address First Session at Emory University.

The Institute of Citizenship, to be held each day through Thursday night, will open at 8:15 o'clock tonight in Glenn Memorial auditorium at Emory University with a speech by Judge Blanton Fortson, of Athens, Ga.

His speech will be on "Georgia Looks at Its Past" and will be the first of many to be heard in the sessions, which will be held first at Emory, then at Agnes Scott and Georgia Tech. The institute is being sponsored jointly by the three schools.

Tuesday's sessions will be held both at Emory and Agnes Scott. Meetings Wednesday will be at both Agnes Scott and Georgia Tech, while sessions will be held only at Tech Thursday.

Besides Judge Fortson, prominent speakers scheduled to address the institute include Donald C. Dr. Howard W. Odum, dean at the University of North Carolina; Dr. Rufus C. Harris, president of Tulane University; William F. Ogburn, distinguished sociologist; and Arthur E. Morgan, chairman of the board of the Tennessee Valley Authority.

MRS. C. A. ALEXANDER DIES AT RESIDENCE

Former School Teacher and Wife of Owner of Hardware Store Here.

Mrs. Julia M. Alexander, 55, wife of the owner of the J. M. Alexander & Co. Hardware store, died early yesterday at her home, 1111 St. Charles place, N. E., following a long illness.

Born and reared in Montgomery, Ala., Mrs. Alexander was principal of a grade school there when she married Cecil A. Alexander, son of the hardware company's founder here. They have made their home in Atlanta since the marriage 25 years ago.

Surviving besides her husband are a daughter, Miss Charlotte Alexander; a son, Cecil A. Alexander Jr., and a sister, Mrs. S. E. Wolff, of Savannah, Ga.

Funeral services will be held at 3 o'clock this afternoon at the residence, conducted by Rabbi David Marx. Burial will be in Oakland cemetery, under the direction of Sam R. Greenberg & Co.

MRS. HART RITES TO BE HELD TODAY

Services Will Be Conducted at Spring Hill.

Funeral services for Mrs. Margaret L. Hart, mother of Dr. Charles R. Hart, member of the department of romance languages at Emory University, who died Friday night in Miami, Fla., will be held at 3:30 o'clock this afternoon at Spring Hill. The Rev. T. S. Willis will officiate.

Mrs. Hart, who was 79, was a world traveler. A native of western New York, she lived in Atlanta for six years during the '80s.

She came here a few years ago, after residing in the east for many years. She was a member of the Atlanta Women's Club, the Emory Women's Club and the As You Like It Club.

Two months ago, her professor-son took her to Miami for her health. He was with her when she died.

Surviving, in addition to Dr. Hart, are two sons, Kirke M. Hart, of Baltimore, Md., and Kenneth L. Hart, of Buffalo, N. Y., and a niece, Miss Angie M. Harding, of Atlanta.

Culbertson Authority To Explain Play of Hand at Suit Bid Today

Constitution's Bridge School Enters Closing Week at Biltmore Hotel.

Bridge players who win consistently rely on something besides luck and the "give-me-the-cards" theory, believes Harold Sharpsteen, The Atlanta Constitution's well-known contract authority. That "something" he expects to explain at today's three sessions of The Constitution's School of Bridge which is entering its closing week's schedule in the Atlanta Biltmore hotel.

The play of the hand at a suit bid, will be thoroughly explained at all classes today, starting at 10:30 a. m., 2:30 and 8 p. m. Trump management at suit bids will be particularly stressed and Mr. Sharpsteen has promised to give classes today a step-by-step routine to follow in determining the plan of play to follow in all types of suit contracts.

Today's three classes open a busy week for Constitution readers and their friends who have been following Mr. Sharpsteen's course of lessons covering the Culbertson system of bidding and play. Three special classes are scheduled for tomorrow at the Biltmore with the regular lessons in The Constitution course book-lets on Wednesday and Friday.

In addition to the lecture pe-

SHORTCUT TUESDAY

A special feature attraction in The Constitution bridge series is scheduled for Tuesday morning, afternoon and night in the Biltmore hotel when Harold Sharpsteen will present his famous "Tan-Tarn" shortcut method for learning how to play contract.

If you have been too busy to attend the regular lessons in The Constitution series, tomorrow is your opportunity to learn the game in a single lesson by following Mr. Sharpsteen's simple, shortcut method. The classes will be held at 10:30 a. m., 2:30 and 8 p. m. Constitution courtesy coupons will be accepted at any one of Tuesday's special classes.

riods and supervised play, final rounds in The Constitution's rubber bridge sweepstakes events will be held after the lessons today, Wednesday and Friday. The Constitution will award trophies to the high-scoring players in the morning, afternoon and night sections of the school.

Constitution readers and their friends may attend any class today or any of the lessons in the closing week's schedule for 35 cents when The Constitution's bridge school courtesy coupon is presented at the classroom. The coupon saves 65 cents as the regular admission fee is $1.

A coupon for any class today appears on this page.

It is not necessary to form complete tables to attend any of this week's classes. Players take note-books and playing cards to the sessions.

FEDERAL OFFICIALS VISIT BATTLEFIELDS

Group Seeking National Park Here Encouraged After Tour.

A national park commemorating Atlanta's battlefields, where Confederate forces clashed with Sherman's invading army, seemed nearer actuality yesterday as National Park Service officials from Washington visited sites proposed for the park.

A. E. Demaray, associate director, National Park Service, told city and county officials he was "much impressed over the splendid possibilities" offered by battlefields and historical sites reminiscent of the ante-bellum days of the old south.

Congressman Robert Ramspeck, who has pushed the request in Washington for a national park here, arrived yesterday morning in time for the tour, which began at the Cyclorama.

Demaray said he had "never seen anything to compare" with the Cyclorama painting depicting the Battle of Atlanta.

While he made no definite commitment, Chamber of Commerce officials, who locally have sponsored the park plan, were encouraged yesterday. Demaray, Phil C. Puderer, National Park Service architect; Olinus Smith, in charge of land acquisition at Kennesaw mountain, and B. C. Yates, acting superintendent of Kennesaw Mountain National Park, made the tour of Atlanta and DeKalb county battle sites yesterday.

Girl Will Go On Trial Today On Charge She Killed Child

Mary O'Connor Accused of Slaying Nancy Glenn,
Who Asked Ride.

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 13.—(AP)—A 19-year-old college girl for whom, her father said, death holds a strange fascination, chatted calmly with friends in the seclusion of her home tonight on the eve of her trial for murder.

Blond Mary K. O'Connor will be called before a jury in criminal court tomorrow to answer the commonwealth's charges that she killed 5-year-old Nancy Glenn last Labor Day because the child begged for a bicycle ride.

The state listed as one of its key witnesses Mrs. Marie Phillips, 25-year-old former Olympic team member. The blue-eyed athlete told police Miss O'Connor confided to her she struck the child with her first and left the crumpled body hidden in a mudhole near her home.

Mrs. Phillips, herself under arrest for a time as a material witness, said she withheld the information out of loyalty to her friend, Captain of Detectives John Murphy, whose investigation of the slaying ended with the sudden arrest of Miss O'Connor last November.

MARY K. O'CONNOR.

ber, said the physical education student recounted in a statement—which she did not sign—that she became "angry" and knocked the child down.

The coroner's jury previously had brought in a verdict of death by strangulation after a coroner's physician testified water was found in a lung. After the arrest, the inquest was reopened and a second jury recommended Miss O'Connor be held.

She was released in $5,000 bail. Other than a statement by her attorney, William A. Gray, that she would make an "unusual plea," the basis of her defense has not been disclosed.

'LADY WITH THE AX' PRAISED FROM PULPITS

ALTON, Ill., Feb. 13.—(AP)—Fifteen Protestant ministers read from their pulpits today a resolution praising Mrs. Irene Kite, "the lady with the ax," who is in jail as a result of her crusade against slot machines in Madison county.

In her cell at Edwardsville, the county seat, the blond buxom woman was reported "quite happy and contented." She was taken there Thursday on warrants charging peace disturbance and malicious destruction of personal property in her ax-wielding exploits.

BIG GAINS SHOWN IN CONSTRUCTION

Private Projects, Totaling
$131,601,000, Increase
35 Per Cent.

NEW YORK, Feb. 13.—(AP)—Industry's sleeping giant—construction—shows faint signs of stirring again after a bad relapse last year.

A recent gain in construction only seasonal preparation for the spring campaign as outdoor work wanes, building men say, may be resumed with the return of warmer weather. Nevertheless, hopes in business quarters, disappointed by the 1937 setback, have risen for resumption of the forward stride by the sprawling, sluggish building industry.

The Engineering News-Record reported today engineering construction awards for the first six weeks of the new year totaled $131,601,000, a gain of 28 per cent over the $247,538,000 awarded in the comparable period last year. Private projects, totaling $131,601,000, showed the biggest gain, amounting to 35 per cent.

MISS LIEBERMAN LAST RITES HELD

Worker for Orphans Buried in Oakland Cemetery.

Funeral services were held yesterday afternoon in the chapel of Sam R. Greenberg for Miss Cordelia Lieberman, 91, whose knitting was instrumental in establishing the Hebrew Orphans' Home. She died Saturday night at her residence on Briarcliff road.

Born in Oakland cemetery, Miss Lieberman devoted much time to knitting. Displays of her work have taken many prizes in fairs and exhibitions in the south.

At the age of 65, she learned to read New York point, a type of printing for the blind that preceded Braille. She was born in Owenton, Ky., coming to Atlanta during Reconstruction Days.

News of Gate City Told in Paragraphs

Monthly meeting of the North Atlanta Civic League will be held tonight in the building at Hemphill avenue and Tenth street, N. W., C. L. Matthews, president, announced yesterday.

Atlanta Harvard Business School Alumni Club will hear John C. Baker, of the Harvard faculty, at a dinner at 6:30 o'clock tonight at the Atlanta Athletic Club. Baker, on his way back to Boston after visiting southern universities, will speak on economic policies of the federal government.

Table-top photography will be the object of the Camera Club's attention at 7:30 o'clock tonight with Sydney Smith furnishing miniature settings to be photographed by members of the club. Pictures taken by the amateurs will be judged and prizes awarded for the best. The meeting, at 110 1-2 Forsyth street, is open to all amateur photographers.

Metropolitan Press in East Favors Vinson 'Hemisphere Fleet' Plan

with the chief executive. Suffice it to say that he and Roosevelt held an extended conference on the subject Tuesday preceding his declaration Friday.

Typical of the comment is an editorial in the Washington Star, one of the leading Republican organs of the section, which characterized the Vinson utterance as the product of statesman-like vision.

"Chairman Vinson," said the Star, in part, "would have it established as 'fundamental naval policy' to maintain a fleet capable of safeguarding our far-flung coast lines east and west, as well as all our insular possessions. That policy would lay it down as axiomatic that, while designed to guarantee national security, such a navy would have no aggressive object. As additional assurance to those who fear the misuse of augmented sea power, the Vinson declaration, drafted as an amendment to the naval construction bill, would pledge the United States acquiescence in further naval limitation.

"Hemisphere Fleet" Proposal. "Names in this connection could only be mentioned invidiously. But certain powerful, militant and covetous countries, lately linked in a bond of common purpose, sufficiently suggest the contingency—remote as it may seem to Americans who think all peoples are as internationally altruistic as we are—which impels experts like Admiral Leahy (chief of naval operations) and statesmen with Representative Vinson's vision to propose a 'hemisphere fleet.'"

The editorial goes on to say that if the United States is to paddle its own canoe alone, as isolationists insist, then it must be equipped to do it. The paper also deplores the defeatist attitude of pacifists groups who have opposed the naval bill. Citing the failure of Japan to answer more directly the questions propounded of its naval construction policy recently by the American government, the New York Times in an editorial today also approves the Vinson declaration. Speaking of the same isolationist attitude referred to by the Star, the Times said of the Vinson amendment:

"Larger Navy Needed. 'If we are to attempt to do all this by our own might, and without some understanding with the other peace-loving democracies whose interests are akin to ours, we shall need a very much larger navy than any which is now in sight. To achieve complete security in complete isolation is an expensive business.'"

So impressed with the Vinson proposal was the Washington Post that his declaration was conspicuously reproduced in full today in space reserved for editorial discussion. Here is what the Georgia congressman said that is regarded with so much importance over the nation:

"It is declared to be the fundamental naval policy of the United States to maintain an adequate navy in sufficient strength to guard the continental United States by affording naval protection to the coastline, in both oceans at one and the same time, to protect the Panama Canal, Alaska, Hawaii and our insular possessions; to protect our commerce and citizens abroad; to maintain a navy in sufficient strength to guarantee our national security, but not for aggression; to insure our national integrity, and to support our national policies."

"It is further declared to be the policy of the United States that an adequate naval defense means not only the protection of our continental coastline. The Canal Zone, Alaska, Hawaii and our insular possessions, but also a defense that will keep any potential enemy away from our shores. 'The United States looks with apprehension and with disfavor to the general increase in naval building throughout the world, but it realizes that no single nation can reduce its naval armament without jeopardizing its national security, except by common agreement.'"

"That, in the event of international agreement for the further limitations of naval armaments to which the United States is signatory, the President is hereby authorized and empowered to suspend so much of its naval construction as has been authorized, as may be necessary to bring the naval armament of the United States within the limitations so agreed upon. Except that such suspension shall not apply to vessels actually under construction on the date of the passage of this act."

'ANTI' DEMOCRATS GOUL TO G. O. P. PLEA

Silence Answers Lincoln Day
Proposals for Coalition at Polls.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 13.—(UP)—Anti-administration Democrats tonight greeted with cold silence the Lincoln day proposals of Senator Arthur Vandenberg, of Michigan, and other ranking Republicans that the two forces unite at the polls to scrap the New Deal.

Senator Josiah Bailey, Democrat, North Carolina, fiery and consistent critic of the administration's reform program, flatly refused to comment on the proposed coalition or on the warning of Governor George D. Aiken, of Vermont, that a third party would emerge from failure of Republicans to purge their leadership of ultra-conservatives. Senator Bennett Clark, Democrat, Missouri, who has fought some New Deal measures and Senator Joseph O'Mahoney, Democrat, Wyoming, who broke with the White House on the supreme court enlargement bill, also declined comment.

a year and no more than $2,379. Tenants must conform to certain regulations. If their incomes mount above the limit, they must move to make room for less fortunate. If they flagrantly violate regulations, they can be forced to move and they can be ousted for failure to pay rent—all without recourse to courts. It's in the agreement that permits them to rent units for $5.52 a room plus $1.81 for their utilities like heat, electricity for lighting and cooking, and water.

Tenants forced to move, McAllister said, or would-be tenants denied admittance on eligibility grounds are frequently the project's severest critics.

Case of One Fellow.

"There was one fellow," he said, "who lost his job under circumstances which made it difficult for him to get another in this community. We suggested it might be advisable for him to move before he got too far behind and finally he had to move, with the result that $19 of our total delinquencies is his."

"We learned tales were emanating from that source that we cut off the lights here at 9:30 p. m., were stung with the heat, and that a tenant couldn't answer the doorbell without somebody wanting to know all about the family affairs."

The facts, said the manager, are that lights are cut off only in cases of power failure, that the heat is scientifically provided from a central plant and that the only supervision is that necessary to preserve the purpose of the housing project.

There's another item, said McAllister, that sometimes causes misunderstanding—house guests.

The management figures 30 days is about right for a bona fide visit. Sometimes, said McAllister, relatives will "move in on" tenants and the same old overcrowded condition the project sought to eradicate threatens to crop up. The management doesn't let it. Either the visitors move or the whole family moves.

No Mops Out of Window.

There are lots of other little regulations about children playing on the grass—there are nine playgrounds plus tennis courts and the like—the ban on hanging mops and clothing out a window; the rule that a maintenance man must be called to hang any pictures a tenant may desire put up and the one against leaving baby carriages in halls or yards that also come into the situation.

"We've done a lot of educational work and still are doing it—particularly among the children—on the care of property," said McAllister. "That's ironing a lot of our early difficulty. I'll give anybody free rein to ask any tenant what he thinks of the place and abide by that verdict."

There was one passing. "I like it better than any place I've ever lived," he said. He was a former Oklahoman working for an automobile company here.

The project cost around $2,875,000. Rents the first year totaled $159,161.

Snow Buries Passenger Train, Marooning 20 Persons for Day

Rotary Plow and Shovelers Save Group in Rockies;
Sacramento Levees Weakened by Rise; Floods Again
Surge Through Michigan.

CUMBRES, Col., Feb. 13.—(AP)—A rotary snowplow and shovelers today dug a passenger train out of snowdrifts which buried and marooned it for more than 24 hours nearly two miles above sea level on Cumbres pass.

A blizzard trapped the Denver & Rio Grande Western train around noon yesterday while it was en route through the southern Colorado Rocky Mountains to Durango, Col., from Alamosa with 14 passengers and six trainmen aboard.

After the two locomotives could no longer buck the drifts while climbing the high pass, fresh snow buried several cars.

The passengers suffered no hardships. Because storms come up suddenly along the route, the Denver & Rio Grande Western stocks its trains with special food supplies. Steam from the two engines kept the passengers warm.

Southern Pacific trains between San Francisco and Portland were halted by what the company described as the worst blizzard in many years.

The snowstorm, centered in a 56-mile stretch from Dunsmuir northward to Penoyar, piled drifts 12 to 15 feet deep over the tracks.

SACRAMENTO LEVEES WEAKENED BY RISE

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 13.—(AP)—A new disturbance from the Pacific brought gales, torrential rain and snow to the Pacific coast, intensifying flood hazards in northern California, and carrying the record-breaking storm through its 18th consecutive day.

A downpour registering 1 1/2 to 4 inches in 24 hours along the upper Sacramento river increased apprehension in the Colusa-Sacramento area, where the stream had been overflowing for days and levees were weakened by saturation.

Rivers and streams, swelling over banks after torrential rains of the week end, still were on a rampage tonight with sheriffs' officers in several counties standing by for rescue work.

MICHIGAN FLOODED BY TORRENTIAL RAINS

DETROIT, Feb. 13.—(AP)—Floods surged on southern Michigan again today, driving scores of families out of homes and covering highways and farms over areas barely back to normal from last week's inundation.

Rivers and streams, swelling over banks after torrential rains of the week end, still were on a rampage tonight with sheriffs' officers in several counties standing by for rescue work.

WHAT'S RIGHT WITH AMERICA

Will H. Hays, president of the Motion Picture Producers and Distributors of America, was the recipient of the gold medal achievement award of the Poor Richard Club for accomplishment in 1937. At the annual banquet of the club, when the presentation was made, Mr. Hays spoke on "What's Right With America." In the course of his speech he said:

Our richest, our indestructible asset, is not in our material resources. It is not the gold in the hills; it is the iron in the hearts of the people. I refer to our national heritage—the American spirit. It lives today as it did in the days of our fathers. It is away back in the headwaters and around the hearthstones of the nation. It was the star which hung over the cradle of our liberty when the republic was born. It is the glory of the American democracy.

I urge a rekindling of that spirit now. It is that which will carry us forward to new heights of progress, while we preserve the principles which made us a great nation. It is that spirit which burns away the dross and leaves the stark realization of the necessity of personal, moral and spiritual accountability. From it we have derived the impetus that has brought us safely and triumphantly through every crisis and constantly to higher peaks of prosperity and distinction. This ever-constant spirit spreads before us its inventory of achievements. These items, simply stated, tell us What's Right with America.

Mr. Hays, in those words, pointed to the anchor which, despite the economic troubles which have beset this generation, still holds the American nation true to the democracy born upon these shores.

It is at the hearthstones of the nation, where coming generations catch the spark of American independence, that the future of America is made secure. It is from the humble homes of consecrated parenthood that the spirit which made America great is passed on to the children who, in years to come, will hold high the banner of human liberty in a world of turbulent conflict.

"Tell us more," says Mr. Hays, "what's right with America."

Therein lies the clue to a stable and prosperous future for the nation.

Problems which today seem almost insurmountable will pass. Industry and business will adjust themselves to the conditions which have created the puzzle of unemployment. Security will come for every good citizen and the march to permanent prosperity will continue until the goal is reached.

For, underlying all the surface unrest, deep in the heart of the nation, there still lives that American spirit on which the republic was founded and there still remain, in every corner of every state, true Americans imbued with the ideals of personal liberty and freedom which are the bedrock of the American system.

As those true Americans answer Mr. Hays' challenge, to "tell us more what's right with America," so will the eternal spirit live and grow until it leads a world, today distraught, to new heights of human peace and contentment.

AIR JOY-RIDES FOR WIVES

Basing the idea upon a theory that women are more afraid of traveling by air than men, a number of the larger air lines are now offering, for a limited time, free transportation for wives who travel with their husbands, according to an article in the Literary Digest.

The aviation executives argue that, after a few such flights, a wife will not only begin using the air lines for her own transportation, but will urge husband to fly, in order that his trips away from home may be of less duration.

Over many routes the passenger planes are said to be full of these joy-riding wives and the companies half the plan as highly successful. They are proving, for the time being at least, that two can ride as cheaply as one.

It seems, however, as though the companies are not altogether correct in the premise upon which this idea is based. Not that anyone would desire to deprive any wife of her free ticket privileges in the air.

But experience indicates that women, as a sex, are less nervous about the air than men. If this is true, why not free tickets to timid husbands who will fly with their wives?

We could run to H. G. Wells and probably learn how civilization will turn out, but the uncertainty is more fun.

The crack-up of a business man in the mid-west is traced to the strain of wrestling with tax forms. Suddenly everything went blank.

German army heads who stood out against der big boy have learned what every householder knows. In an argument with a paper-hanger, you can't win.

"The Japanese are so far into China, fears are felt for their lines of communication." Millions may be surprised to learn that the army and Tokyo ever communicate.

THOSE HOSPITAL BILLS

To the average man or woman on salary, or with limited income, there is frequently financial tragedy when unexpected emergency makes heavy call upon slender resources.

One of the most dreaded of such experiences is the hospitalization costs that accompany unexpected sickness. Many a patient has had recovery retarded because of the financial worry which has prevented that mental ease and physical relaxation so necessary to proper treatment.

A new civic movement, started by leading Atlanta doctors and business men, is designed to remove this financial worry from those suddenly stricken with sickness. It is in no sense a commercial undertaking, being a non-profit organization, founded strictly on a civic basis as a contribution to the independence and well being of all Atlantans.

It is known as the United Hospitals Service Association of Atlanta. Under its system, duly authorized and chartered by the state, groups of employees may join the organization and then, by payment of a nominal monthly fee, in no case exceeding one dollar, be entitled to free hospitalization, with all contingent expenses, except the fees of the physician or surgeon, in event of sickness. Each patient has his own physician, just as now, and likewise has the choice of any of the hospitals in the association. All the leading hospitals of the Atlanta area belong.

There are a few restrictions, of course, as well as other benefits. The plan is an excellent one and, while only started about three months ago, has already been welcomed by approximately 1,500 Atlantans.

It appeals particularly to that class, typical of America, which abhors to accept charity. It provides a way by which these independent souls may pay their own way in any normal case of sickness and at the same time avoid the frequently disastrous strain of an unexpected call upon slender financial resources.

It should, when in full swing, react to the benefit of the entire city. It will relieve the pressure on Grady hospital, inasmuch as many who are now forced by lack of funds to go to the city hospital will go to a private hospital instead. It will result in better health, greater security and an improved economic condition for thousands of Atlanta people.

WARNED IN ADVANCE

According to a research publication, "Rain-fall and Tree Growth in the Great Basin," issued by the American Geographical Society of New York, a period of great drought will be experienced by Nevada and parts of Oregon, Utah, Idaho and California in about ten years from now.

The prediction is made by Dr. Ernst Antevs, of the Carnegie Institute of Washington, one of the leading authorities on the history of the American climate. He bases his forecast after a personal study of old river beds, lake shores, local histories and the rings in tree trunks, which are wider in wet years and which contain the story of nearly three centuries of weather.

The area to suffer under the anticipated drought covers approximately 175,000 square miles and is described geographically as the "Great basin," lying between the Wasatch and Sierra Nevada mountains.

America has already had an example of the disastrous effect of serious drought in the experiences of midwestern "dust bowls" in recent years. Unless preparations are made in advance to provide artificial irrigation and other safeguards, the people of the great basin described by Dr. Antevs may be destined for a repetition of that tragedy before 1950.

A properly organized social and economic system would heed the warning from such authority as this and plan its program for the next decade accordingly.

There is this about the overpriced 25-cent cocktail. It eliminates the pre-war struggle to pick a thin dime off a wet bar.

Washington was left sorely perplexed by the little business men. No one seems to know where they got the wind, as no breathing spell had been proclaimed in months.

Editorial of the Day

ANDREW FURUSETH
(From the Detroit News.)

For whatever safety and creature comfort he now enjoys at sea, the British seaman is most heavily in debt to Samuel Pimms, who spent most of his adult life arguing in parliament and in the forum of public opinion the cause of better conditions for workers in the British marine. Nor was it any reflection on his motives, but rather a testimony to the breadth of his compassion, that he was no sailor or one who had ever known hardship or privation.

Another Pimms died the other day—this one a sailor, born in Norway but an American citizen for most of his many years. He was Andrew Furuseth, who in a lifetime of singlehanded battling put on the statute books a series of laws which constitute whatever bill of rights the American seaman owns. He was the soul of the International Seamen's Union and its right arm in its fight for civilized conditions afloat. He lived to see it taken over by an element younger and wilder-eyed, but none that will have to participate in such a war as constituted his whole life.

It was Furuseth who said to a friend, on being warned that his course would put him behind the bars: "Let them jail me. No cell could be smaller than the room I have always lived in. No food could be plainer than the food I have always eaten. I could not be lonelier than I have always been." It was a fearful indictment of a way of life which thousands of Americans had to endure.

It helps a little in understanding, if not entirely forgiving, the temper of marine workers which has periodically paralyzed our shipping and is paralyzing morale in the American marine. They are wrong, but they have long been wronged.

THE CAPITAL PARADE

By JOSEPH ALSOP AND ROBERT KINTNER.

TV-A'S INTERNAL DISPUTE WASHINGTON, Feb. 13.—

While he seems to be unable to do anything about it, the President is definitely sick and tired of the unending Conservative-Radical squabble in the Tennessee Valley Authority. When he entrusted J. D. Ross, leading public ownership advocate, with the management of Oregon's great Bonneville power project, his only injunction to him was:

"Don't get me into a mess like the mess in the TVA. It's given me a headache most days and a stomachache some nights."

Under ordinary circumstances, this piece of Presidential outspokenness might be taken as a clear indication that the White House was preparing to fish or cut bait in the TVA matter. But the truth is, informed sources believe that, although Dr. Arthur E. Morgan, TVA conservative chairman, has prepared a minority annual report compounded of dynamite and TNT, the same rickety and puzzling status quo will be continued.

A settlement is certainly long overdue. Dr. Morgan and his radical colleagues, David E. Lilienthal and Harcourt A. Morgan, have been at one another's throats for a couple of years. Every month or so, one side or the other comes screaming to the White House, accusing the enemy of having been, in the words of the old "New Yorker" caption, both "unethical and lousy."

Dr. Morgan wants a reasonable peace with the private utilities; his opponents want war to the death, and TVA policy is constantly confused by their twined and twined conflicts. Last year, when Dr. Morgan prepared a public statement as full of dynamite as his new minority report, the President warded off a settlement by persuading him to suppress it. It's rather expected that Dr. Morgan's present effort may also be suppressed.

Of course, the TVA situation is immensely important, since the whole future of administration utilities policy is intimately bound up with it. At the same time, it's rather ludicrous.

When Dr. Morgan hurries tearfully to the White House, the President soothes him with intimations that he thinks the Morgan notions are just fine. A reasonable peace accounting on the Morgan plan and the establishment of a grid system with the private utilities in the Tennessee Valley, all appear to be possible next steps. And then the left wing White House advisers slip in the back door, remind the President of the sins of the utilities men, and prepare him to receive Mr. Lilienthal, when he turns up in tears, quite as encouragingly as he has received Dr. Morgan.

WALL STREET'S TIP SERVICE A thing that infuriates New left-wingers as much as anything else is the invasion of Washington by Wall Street. At any given moment, the most expensive hotels in town contain at least 50 important figures from the New York brokerage and banking houses. What 90 per cent of them are here for is to find out what's going to happen.

Sometimes the Wall Streeters are successful, for men of money can offer pleasingly tempting inducements. A recent case was the leak in Senator Burton K. Wheeler's railroad investigation committee, by which the Montana Democrat's plans for revising the railroad statutes, to put the roads through the wringer, found their way to the stock exchange floor. The trickle is supposed to have been through a lawyer, formerly connected with the Interstate Commerce Commission, who had access to the documents.

Wheeler is furious, and his friends among the left-wing New Dealers, who join him in desiring an uncompromising railroad policy, are holding indignation meetings. The whole business is rather silly, since the importance of government to business is now such that the unfortunate businessmen can hardly be blamed for seeking information about government, whether by hook or even by crook.

DUBINSKY GROWS COLDER The irrepressible David Dubinsky, of the International Ladies' Garment Workers, isn't confining his headache-giving to John L. Lewis and his colleagues in the CIO of late. The mere mention of the name of Dubinsky has been enough to fetch a howl of pain out of any of the influential White House left-wingers who are backing Robert H. Jackson for Governor of New York.

The fact is that Mr. Dubinsky, having promised the left-wingers that the powerful American Labor party would support Mr. Jackson, is now growing chiller by the day. Since the Labor party now appears to hold the balance of power in New York, its obvious play is either to force a favorite candidate on the Democrats, or make a deal with the Republicans to run an Independent. The object of the Republican deal would be concessions in congressional races in return for cutting Democratic strength in the state-wide gubernatorial contest.

Mr. Dubinsky is now showing the most obvious signs of nervousness. He fears that he is out on a limb with Mr. Jackson, since the chances of forcing the able and personable assistant attorney general on the New York Democratic leaders look rather slim. At the same time, unqualified endorsement of Mr. Jackson destroys Mr. Dubinsky's bargaining power with the Republicans. Thus, Mr. Dubinsky is trying to crawl back closer to the trunk of the tree, and Mr. Jackson's backers are exceedingly unhappy about the Labor party support.

These rhymes
Of deep
Futility.

Those Old
Barbers' Bottles.

Do you remember those old-style, round, decorated bottles that used to stand behind every chair in every barber shop and from which the tonsorial expert would shake the perfumed hair tonic over your head?

A friend of mine would like, very much, to secure some of them. Maybe a dozen. But where to find 'em, nowadays?

They were round, if you recall, like the rubber bulb on an old auto horn. And they had long slender necks. They were made of glass with cloudy, milk-like opacity and they were decorated with painted flowers, etc.

If anyone knows where some of these sentimental antiques can be found, I'll appreciate hearing about it.

And writing the above has brought about a nostalgic sigh for the old barber shops. Not so sanitary, perhaps, but the camaraderie and the warmth and the Police Gazette! Ho, hum. Times do change, don't they?

A Memorial
To Women Pioneers.

The Women's Pioneer Society of Atlanta expects to unveil, in Piedmont park, next Mother's Day, a monument made of Stone Mountain granite, with two bronze plates, as a memorial to the Atlanta women of the sixties who suffered so much and did so much to make possible that rebuilding of the Atlanta of which we are so proud today.

The society was organized in 1909, its membership consisting of women who lived during the War Between the States and the following era of reconstruction. They organized purely for social purposes, to meet and to do what they could to keep alive the lovely traditions of Atlanta and the old south.

Very few of those women are alive today, just a few charter members of the society. Their daughters now comprise the great portion of the membership.

They have left an imperishable heritage which will be felt in the lives of their sons and daughters for many generations.

But the society has felt that a more material memorial to their glory should be created and left to remind all Atlanta of what these women did.

Hence the monument for Piedmont park.

It is now in process of carving, by Steffen Thomas. The cost has not been quite completed, though sufficient has been given to assure the women it will all come in and the monument can be erected, as they plan, next Mother's Day.

This column usually makes a rule never to ask contributors for anything. This time, however, rare exceptions and this is just one of those rare cases to prove the rule.

The Women's Pioneer Society appreciates all contributions to the memorial fund, large or small. And whatever you can send will help in a very worthy ambition. One that will bring deep joy to those few of the women pioneers who still survive.

Mrs. Lola Walker Clement is president of the society and you might send your gifts to her, at 281 Fifteenth street, N. E.

Twenty-Five

From The Constitution of Friday, February 14, 1913:

"A move is on foot in Washington to abolish the office of surveyor of customs for the port of Atlanta, and a vigorous fight on the contemplated change is expected."

And Fifty

From The Constitution of Tuesday, February 14, 1888:

"A correspondent asks us what is going on in society. Indifferent digestions, occasional parties or the happiness or unhappiness common to human nature, whether it be high or low."

FAIR ENOUGH

By WESTBROOK PEGLER.

Answer Is CHICAGO, Feb. 13.

Very Plain Many an earnest and learned brow has puckered in solemn study of the state of mind which is Chicago and failed to express the political philosophy of the people as well as Frank Zintak stated it during his trial on a charge of embezzling $10,000 of public funds.

Mr. Zintak is a typical Chicago public official, a minor politician who became clerk of the superior court.

In the course of the trial the following dialogue occurred:

Question—"Whose check was that?"

Answer (by Mr. Zintak)—

"That's what I say if you would only let this go until tomorrow there would be nothing to it, because here's the idea, even if it is on record, you are stirring up something that probably will be worse in the political line than anything, because I represent the largest group of people in Chicago."

"They have all the faith in the world in me for things I done squarely, because there was not anything we done in politics that we did not do it in accord with what those people wished. Some of the people may think there shouldn't be something like groups, but there will be Polish groups and maybe others as long as we exist, for the simple reason that fraternal organizations they encourage youth to belong to them, and the only way they can do that is by keeping that spirit up, because they are insurance groups and they would diminish if they did not."

Entertainment

Mr. Zintak was vindicated and public opinion has held him blameless, because the community was absolutely convinced by the defense that he did not take the money for himself, but gave it to charities and advanced it to other politicians, including at least one judge. Afterward there was a bit of scandal over the fact that some of the jurors, when they were taken out for the air at night in custody of court officers, were entertained in night clubs, gave the attractions included liquor, dancing and slot machines.

But the community bears Mr. Zintak no ill will, and his conduct in a position of public trust is not popularly deplored, because the morality and mentality of the city as a whole are the morality and mentality of Mr. Zintak.

Sweitzer's

Then there was the case of Robert M. Sweitzer, a county clerk who admitted a $350,000 shortage. His defense was that it would have been a compromise with honor to turn back to his successor a dollar more or a dollar less than the exact amount due and that the accounting of the prosecution arrived at the figure of $414,000 was inexact. This inexactness was attributed to the confused condition of his books, and the jury returned a verdict in his favor.

Mr. Sweitzer's loved ones and friends unsullied of honor on this ground and the representation of his counsel that the law was old and archaic notwithstanding the state's rejoinder that the law against stealing went back to the tablets of Sinai.

The judge instructed the jury that a retiring county clerk by law must surrender to his successor all books and money and all interest fees of the office, but the jury held with Mr. Sweitzer that he could not possibly turn over said money if there was doubt as to the amount, and accepted his own declaration that he would make restitution as soon as the amount was fixed compatibly with his honor. He is still willing to do this, but the amount has not yet been fixed to his satisfaction.

GOOD MORNING

By LOUIE D. NEWTON.

EXPECTATION. "My expectation is from God," said the Psalmist, "wait thou only upon Him." Expectation is the power and joy of life for the soul that trusts in God. Paul said, "We are saved by hope." Someone has defined faith as the spirit of expectancy. The real measure of a man is not his achievement, but his aspiration. We are what we are becoming.

But let it be urged that expectation must have an adequate basis if it is not to be a fool's paradise. It is the true foundation of justifiable expectation. There is a purpose, righteous, loving God in Whom we live and move and have our being. He aims to make us sharers in His own glorious life, and to establish an eternal fellowship of redeemed personalities. He has adequate power, infinite resources.

"We cannot think better than God will do," said Marge Howe of Drumtochty. It was her way of saying that God is able to do exceedingly abundantly above what that we ask or even think. Charles Darwin, learning of Allen Gardiner's courage and faith in his pioneer work as a missionary to the Fuegians, dying of starvation through these words inscribed on a rock near his hut, "My soul, wait thou only upon God; for my expectation is from Him," became a constant contributor to Christian missions.

Such a spirit of expectation must have surged through the soul of the author of these lines, quoted in a recent novel:

"He was better to me than all my hopes."

Better than all my fears, He made a bridge of my broken works, A rainbow of my tears.

The billows that guarded my sea-girt path, But none my Lord on their crest, When I dwell on the days of my wilderness march, I can lean on His love and rest."

Ten Who Agree Can Lead 90

Who Do Not Know Where

They Are Going

By ROBERT QUILLEN.

Most of us regard man as a creature capable of reasoning and free at all times to form his own opinions and determine his own conduct.

But that picture of him is too flattering. He seldom if ever has complete freedom of choice. He is a Charlie McCarthy, speaking words that another placed in his mouth; and while he may rebel against every restraint and influence, and do the thing he wills to do, he is still unconsciously obedient to the will of another and as helpless as a man bewitched.

Could a Chinese woman, whose feet were bound in her infancy, now change their shape by an effort of will? You know she could not. And neither can a man change the cells of his brain, remove the impressions made upon them, and thus form new ideas and convictions.

As his capacities were determined by his parentage before he was born, so his ideas, his opinions, his standards and convictions were impressed upon his mind by his early environment, his companions, his teachers in and out of school, and his own experiences.

His mind now directs him, but these things determined how it should direct him, and he moves as helplessly as though he were hypnotized.

Why does he believe this or that? Because he was taught to believe it—because somebody or something shaped his mind as a potter shapes a crock. You say he could change his opinion if he wished, and that is true. But he can't wish to change it. He is a Baptist, a Democrat, a radical or a reactionary because he was made to be so. The sacred convictions he fights for are not products of his own independent thinking, but ready-made opinions virtually forced upon him in his youth.

Thus each generation shapes the destiny of the next, whether by intent or accident or indifference. We progress slowly, if at all, because different influences taught us different things and one group checks and interferes with another. If all were in agreement, we could change the world in a day.

Russia's experience proves that a new generation can be made to believe almost anything. Young Russia despise the rich, laugh at religious beliefs and regard private ownership of property as something shameful.

It was easier to teach all youth the same code in the simple old days when Spartans were preparing for conquest, but it can be done by moderns.

The millions of youngsters who will inherit Russia, Germany, Italy and Japan are now being taught beliefs and standards that seem wrong and dangerous to us.

If our youngsters must face that competition while divided by forty conflicting beliefs acquired by chance, the outlook for democracy isn't very bright.

REPRESENTING GEORGIA

By GLADSTONE WILLIAMS.

Revenue Measure WASHINGTON, Feb. 13.—The Department of Agriculture appropriation bill, which means so much to the state of Georgia, will be submitted to the house for consideration the latter part of this month, Representative Malcolm C. Tarver of Dalton, has just announced.

Judge Tarver, who is the second ranking majority member of the subcommittee now engaged in drafting the measure, said that it was his purpose to do what he could to keep the appropriations well within the budget bureau's estimates, if such procedure did not interfere with the normal functioning of the agricultural machinery of the federal government.

"We are making the best progress on our annual appropriation bill this year of any time since I have been a member of congress," Representative Tarver said. Within a day or two the state, justice, commerce and labor departments' appropriations bills will be reported to the lower chamber, leaving agriculture, interior, military and one or two deficiency bills yet to be acted upon.

Judge Tarver also is second ranking member on the state, justice, commerce and labor departments subcommittee.

"We are making the best progress on our annual appropriation bill this year of any time since I have been a member of congress," Representative Tarver said.

Within a day or two the state, justice, commerce and labor departments' appropriations bills will be reported to the lower chamber, leaving agriculture, interior, military and one or two deficiency bills yet to be acted upon.

reappointed by Governor Talmadge. Colonel Beaver was placed on the board by Governor Talmadge. He also served as chief of the Talmadge military staff.

Representative Randall Evans, of McDuffie county, Talmadge leader in the house, yesterday scored the Coleman amendment. "It was purely a political move on the part of Rivers' leaders," Evans, said, adding that he expected the next assembly to be asked to repeal the provisions.

Representative L. L. Brown Jr., of Peach county, an anti-Rivers leader, charged the governor is "making a political football of appointments without regard to fitness for office."

Pledge Fulfilled. Commenting on the effect of the Coleman amendment, Governor Rivers said:

"This administration had a campaign pledge to rid the state of the last vestige of Talmadgeism and we are trying to carry out the promises we made to the people."

"At every stage of our program when the legislature has been in session the Talmadge crowd has maintained a lobby and henchmen in Atlanta, trying to block every measure the administration has undertaken to carry out the Democratic platform."

"They undertook to prolong the session and to pile up expenses on the people of the state.

"The bill referred to was passed on a roll call vote in the house. We carried out our program by law and not by bayonet."

Troops Called Out.

His last sentence referred to Talmadge's calling out the national guard during his tenure to enforce his executive orders. The troops were called to force the ouster of the old highway board, the removals of Comptroller General William B. Harrison and State Treasurer George B. Hamilton.

Talmadge was reported at his Telfair county home and could not be reached for a statement.

Although most members of both house and senate went home yesterday enrolling and engrossing committee members remained over to prepare bills for the Governor's signature. The offices of Secretary John Hammond, of the senate, and Clerk Joe Boone, of the house, likewise were at work.

Governor Rivers said he intends to spend today at his office studying bills enacted during the last days of the session. Tomorrow he is going to the Tattall county prison to help the new board of penal administration embark upon its work.

Commissioner Head Explains How Homestead Exemption Law Works

T. Grady Head, Warning That Applications Must Be Made Not Later Than April 1, Says Only Actual Resident Can Obtain Exemption.

State Revenue Commissioner T. Grady Head issued a question and answer explanation yesterday of the way Georgia's new $2,000 homestead exemption law operates.

He explained the questions were typical of those received by the Revenue Department in connection with the operation of the tax exemption act.

Application for homestead exemptions does not constitute a tax return, he said, and claim for exemption must be made not later than April 1.

By terms of the act, failure to file the application and schedule required by April 1, constitutes a waiver of the exemption for the year in which such failure occurs.

No property owned by a corporation is exempt and no person can claim exemption on a residence not occupied by the applicant.

Fix Total Value First. The tax receiver or assessor should first fix the taxable value of the entire property on which the exemption is claimed and then deduct the homestead exemption from the taxable value as determined by him.

For example, said Head, "Let's assume John Smith bought a home for which he paid $10,000; that the usual method of assessment in his county is 60 per cent of actual values. Therefore, he would be charged with a taxable value of $6,000, and from this $6,000 would be deducted his exemption of $2,000, leaving a valuation of $4,000 on which he would have to pay taxes. It would not be proper first to deduct from the $10,000 the $2,000 homestead exemption, leaving 60 per cent of the remainder on which the taxes must be paid, since this would require that he pay taxes on $4,800, and this would in effect be defeating the purposes of the homestead exemption act."

Pertinent Questions. Pertinent questions and answers compiled by Commissioner Head about the law follow:

Q. Do agents have the right to file applications for exemptions?
A. No. Section 2 of the act provides that the person seeking application shall file a written application.

Q. If a home and store are combined, are they exempt from taxes? If so, how should the return be taken, a certain value on the business and certain value on the residence? Would the exemption be allowed on the business and not on the business, or would all be exempted?
A. Section 7 of the act provides that homestead means real property owned by the applicant who is in possession thereof and upon which said applicant resides, and the land immediately surrounding said residence, and to which he or she has a right to said possession under bona fide claim of ownership. The home must be actually occupied.

Q. If a house is divided into two apartments, one rented and one furnished and maintained as a home, how is the exemption to be applied, on all or part? Or are they entitled to any exemption, if so how should this be entered on the tax return?
A. The person owning the property as stated in the above question is entitled to the exemption if the apartment is actually occupied as a permanent residence of the applicant. This applies only where a person is using the apartment as a home, renting an apartment, but not to apartment houses.

Q. If a party maintains a house with two apartments, one rented and the other maintained as a home, although the party is in a city in another state connected with the federal government, and not likely to be in the county for a year, is that party entitled to exemption on real estate and personal property?
A. The apartment which is maintained by the owner must be actually occupied by him or his family as a home in order to obtain the exemption.

Q. Where the title of property is in three or more parties and one of the holders maintains the property as a residence for his family, his mother and father; the other holders living elsewhere, is this property subject to the $2,000 exemption?
A. The property is entitled to the exemption under the law.

Q. In a case where there are eight heirs equally interested in a piece of property, only one heir being a resident of the county and residing on the place and maintaining it as a home and farm, with consent of other heirs, is this property entitled to $2,000 exemption?
A. The person residing on the property and maintaining it as a home is entitled to the exemption, however, only one homestead shall be allowed to the one immediate family group.

Tourist Homes. Q. Is a party maintaining a house as a residence, and at the same time taking in tourists as a tourist home, subject to the exemption?
A. Yes. Where the building is occupied permanently as a dwelling.

Q. If a mother and son own property jointly, and the mother maintains the residence as a home, the son living elsewhere, is the mother entitled to the full exemption?
A. Yes.

Q. If a party owns a house and is not occupying same on January 1, but moves into it during January, February or March, although he held title to the same prior to January 1, is he subject to the exemption? If a party purchases a home after January 1, but moves into it before April 1, is he subject to the exemption for 1938?
A. If the person moves into the house

Still dragging the wreckage of Rosanbalm's car, the train struck the second machine, driven by Marion McCrory, 18, near the station, and killed Miss Ida Clauson, 31.

Quick-Healing Remedy for Wounds Is Found in Fruits and Vegetables

BLOOMINGTON, Ind., Feb. 13.—In the pectin which housewives use to make jelly, Indiana University medical experts have discovered a quick-healing remedy for wounds. The details were made public here today.

Pectin is a jelly that comes from boiling fruits and vegetables. Apples are rich in it. Curiosity as to why scraped apple helps to cure diarrhea led to the wound-healing discovery. It was already known that pectin was the effective part of the apple.

These facts suggested that pectin might have the power to kill germs. An exploration of this possibility was undertaken by Dr. Edith Haynes, biologist of Indiana University school of medicine; Miss Grace Washburn, dietitian; Dr. Charles A. Tompkins and Dr. Matthew Winters.

Pectin proved to be a powerful germ-killer—but only under certain circumstances. Its effects depended on the acidity or alkalinity of the place where it was applied. In acid areas pectin often wiped out the bacteria. In alkaline environment the jelly completely lost its antiseptic value.

Pectin proved most useful for infected bone marrow, or osteomyelitis. This is a serious risk when broken bones penetrate the flesh. In some cases of osteomyelitis the recovery time was cut in half.

Eskimo Love, a Knowing Officer Beat Alaskan Law and Teacher

SEATTLE, Feb. 13.—(P)—How Alaskan law and a prim, white school teacher threatened to disrupt Eskimo romance in the remote island settlements between Alaska and Siberia was disclosed today by Commander F. A. Zeussler of the coast guard cutter Northland.

Alaska's law requires that native marriages be registered with a United States commissioner. But there is no resident commissioner in the isolated islands and when Commander Zeussler arrived at the principal settlement he found the Eskimos "hopping mad."

The white school teacher, he found, had insisted that couples who wished to marry, wait until Commander Zeussler, who is ex-officio United States commissioner, arrive to register their marriages in conformity with the letter of the law. The hot-blooded Innuits rebelled.

Commander Zeussler ruled in favor of the natives. Now they marry—officially—at any time by registering with the tribal council and re-registering when the commissioner arrives.

Famous Chefs, the world over, have built reputations on foods cooked with Gas. They know they can depend on Gas for instant heat, easily adjustable to any cooking speed.

Miss Ruth Chambers PREFERS GAS BECAUSE IT COOKS BETTER

Foods taste better when they are prepared at exactly the right temperatures. They have a finer, distinctive flavor that makes you want the same dish over and over again.

Even before the gas range was modernized—with oven heat control, high speed broilers, and top burners automatically lighted and instantly adjustable to a simmer, a giant flame or to a thousand speeds in between—Gas was the best cooking fuel because it was so easily adjustable to varied cooking speeds.

NOW, with modern gas ranges, Gas is more than ever the best cooking fuel. It is instantly and ACCURATELY adjustable to ANY cooking speed! Even a beginner can cook with assurance. All she needs do is follow a good recipe—her modern gas range does the rest.

In common with 16 million other modern American women, Miss Ruth Chambers prefers Gas. See her prepare many new and interesting recipes in her Gas Cooking School at the Georgia Theatre, Tomorrow, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday.

The modish lines and variety of color combinations obtainable in the modern gas range lend themselves easily to individuality in kitchen decorations. And the labor-saving efficiency of the modern gas range brings convenience and leisure hours undreamed of a few years ago. You get better results, with greater fuel economy and less effort!

INSURGENTS GAIN CORDOBA POSITIONS; FIGHTING CONTINUES

Capture of Zalamea Hill Reported as Battle Flares in Southern Spain.

HENDAYE, France, Feb. 13.—(AP)—A Spanish government communiqué acknowledged today that insurgent troops had gained "several positions" on the Cordoba front of southern Spain but said fighting was still in progress.

The insurgents had reported capture of Zalamea Hill which they termed the most important position on the Extremadura front. The government did not admit the hill had been lost.

The civil war has come to revolve about this southern front as well as the Teruel or eastern theater of battle.

An official insurgent announcement said General Fidel Davila's new offensive, now in control of both banks of the Alfambra river north of Teruel, had cost the government "very heavy losses."

FRONT PARTIES UNITE TO STOP RENT PROPOSAL
MADRID, Feb. 13.—(AP)—Popular Front parties today united to block a Communist party proposal designed to regulate on a basis of tenants' incomes the rent paid for property occupied since the outbreak of the war.

The Communists proposed at a council meeting that the municipality seek government sanction for fixing rents at 5 per cent of their income for persons earning 300 pesetas monthly and a scale graduated upward until persons earning 1,000 pesetas or more monthly pay 20 per cent of their income.

ventions in the kitchen and everything connected with the "edible" side of life.

Her "Food Fashion Revue" school teaches housewives in four days the equivalent of six weeks of schooling elsewhere, for she has the latest devices and methods of preparing food at her fingertips during the school. Atlanta merchants will work with her, assuring her of the best equipment and seeing that she has the best foods to use in her lessons.

Each day during the school, which will last through Friday, there will be special features for all attending women. Besides 25 baskets of food to be given each day, there will be cookbooks, recipes and individual prizes of great value. Each year these prizes are offered by The Constitution with merchants co-operating in the school.

Miss Chambers believes housewives today are just as interested in cooking as they were last year, the year before—or 20 years ago—when schools were held here under sponsorship of The Constitution.

Must Cook Sometime.
"Women realize," she said, "that they must cook sometimes—even if they have maids, eat in restaurants with their husbands or never enter a kitchen. Besides, women love to learn new methods of cooking and to improve their kitchens—even if just to teach the maid something!"

Mr. Goesser's program tonight, although of interest to anyone, will be designed especially for restaurant men, retail merchants and meat market operators. He will explain the latest in buying and selling meats, together with the innovations in cuts.

"Meats can be made decorative as well as enjoyable to eat," he said. "Merchants who learn this—and act upon it—are the ones who will get a share of the giant meat business."

Cut For All Occasions.
"The housewives of America serve approximately 47 million pounds of steaks, chops, roasts and stews every day. If this isn't a market to shoot at, the merchant-retailer and the meat market men are being badly fooled."

There is, Mr. Goesser states, a meat cut for every occasion and for every pocketbook.
He will share the limelight this week with Miss Chambers in the cooking school, bringing to housewives the latest in styles of meat cuts, which are constantly being designed to satisfy the demands of the modern housewife for greater variety in the meat dish.

Last year, thousands of women attended The Constitution's cooking school, and not one was displeased either with the lessons she learned or the prizes she received. Hundreds of women commented favorably on the lessons they learned.

Co-operating Firms.
Co-operating in bringing the cooking school to Atlanta are the following companies: The American Sugar Refining Company, Doughtnut Corporation of America, Lever Brothers, Welch Grape Juice Company, Clorox Chemical Company, Lachoy Food Products, Inc., McCormick Company, Northern Paper Mills, National Biscuit Company, Wesson Oil & Snow-drift Sales Company.

tional leaders and school children in the state."

Bee Awards.
Championship certificates, a week's expense-free trip to Washington, D. C., and opportunity to share in $1,750 in cash prizes and to compete for national champion are incentives to widely spread responses.

The educational value of the plan was stressed by discerning school officials, who saw in the spelling bee a soundly based method of arousing interest among children not only in the construction of words but in the whole philosophy of language.

Entry blanks and other material fully explaining the plan are in final preparation, to be sent directly to school authorities for distribution to class rooms, where the initial phase of the national contest, which has drawn more than 3,000,000 children, will be staged.

"As a matter of history," Superintendent Rainey declared, "spelling bees belong to the country school pupils of long ago, and have never lost their compelling quality. They were exciting events, eagerly looked forward to and prepared for. Whole neighborhoods discussed afterward how the rival waxed warm, and the unexpectedness with which misfortune would settle upon promising contestants, until the 'spello' brought tense and an eventual victory."

Value of the Spelling Bee.
"Those old spelling bees developed self-reliance, agility of mind and a sure knowledge of words which had much to do with moulding the typical American character of past generations. Spelling bees are of equal value today, and for the same reasons. They are interesting. In fact, they possess as great an appeal as sports, and they stimulate objective thought in all of those who take part."

"I am sure that nowhere will the Constitution's efforts in behalf of the National Spelling Bee, and the development of our grade-school spellers, be more greatly appreciated than in the rural schools. The selection of grade, school, county, independent school system and state champions will be followed with real interest, and the state and national finals with attendant rewards and ceremonies will hold the attention of thousands."

"I am glad to join with other city, county and state educational officials in commending warmly this constructive movement of The Constitution designed to benefit Georgia's future citizens and rulers."

The Georgia championship final will be held in Atlanta May 7, and champion spellers of counties and independent school systems will compete. State officials will be

RUMANIANS STUDY CURBING OF VOTERS

New Constitution Commission Considers Age Requirement Proposals.

BUCHAREST, Feb. 13.—(AP)—Proposals to limit the right to vote and to tighten age requirements for legislators are being studied by a commission planning a new Rumanian constitution to replace the one suspended by King Carol, it was learned reliably tonight.

One of the measures would raise the voting age to 30 instead of 21 as hitherto and require that candidates for the chamber of deputies be at least 30 instead of 25 and candidates for the senate 50 instead of 40.

Convicts would be denied the franchise and it was suggested that women, previously permitted to vote for municipal candidates, be deprived of the vote entirely.

To solve the long-standing problem of illiterate voters it was proposed that they form groups of 25, 50 or 100 each—their names to be entered on a collateral list. If a voter is illiterate and cannot read or write, he must be accompanied by a literate and educated representative to vote for each group.

Still another proposal was that voters be required to have some definite employment. A measure to regulate and censor newspapers also was under consideration.

AIR PASSENGER KILLED, PILOT HURT IN CRASH

MIAMI, Fla., Feb. 13.—(AP)—Leonard Breen, a passenger, was killed and Thomas C. Winter, the pilot, was seriously injured tonight when their plane nose-dived to earth at the Sunny South airport. Cause of the crash was not immediately determined.

HITLER SEEK COLONIES RETURN

Italy Dickers Over Recall of Volunteers From Spain.

afloat between Germany and Great Britain involving an important colonial concession for Germany but requiring first the fulfillment of certain conditions.

One of these conditions was described as a definite clarification of Germany's relations with Austria, removing once and for all the fear of sudden aggression in that sector.

Assurances given by Hitler himself to Chancellor Kurt von Schuschnigg, of Austria, would be a vital element of such a clarification, and that was why it was necessary for the two to meet yesterday in the surprise conference at Berchtesgaden, Hitler's Bavarian mountain retreat.

Premier Benito Mussolini, of Italy, whose chances of reaching a satisfactory agreement with Great Britain have seemed brighter recently, was said to have urged Schuschnigg to accept Hitler's invitation.

From the Italian point of view, nothing could be better than a settlement by which Hitler would get colonies, Mussolini's British recognition for his conquest of Ethiopia and Austria definitely would cease to be Europe's apple of discord.

Further indications that Hitler and Mussolini were working together in an effort to reach a lasting solution of the Austrian question was seen in the emphasis with which it was stated that Duce was being kept informed on all developments arising from the Berchtesgaden talks.

Warships of Three Nations Join British Singapore Fete

United States, France and Holland Join Marine Demonstration at Official Opening of $100,000,000 'Gibraltar of Far East' as 10,000 Look On.

SINGAPORE, Monday, Feb. 14.—Great Britain today unveiled the mightiest bulwark of her far-flung empire's defenses—the $100,000,000 "Gibraltar of the Far East," guarding Singapore straits—in a ceremony that was interpreted as a grim warning to any power that might attempt to infringe on British holdings in the Orient.

The official opening, attended by the civil governor, Sir Shenton Thomas, was held in the presence of 10,000 persons and the warships of three friendly powers—the United States, France and Holland—and the secrets of the giant fortifications were closely guarded.

The presence of foreign warships, including the light cruisers Memphis, Trenton and Milwaukee of the American fleet, which arrived here Sunday morning on a "courtesy visit," was regarded with almost as much interest as the opening of the big naval base.

U. S. Ships Guest.

Officially the commander of the American fleet denied there was any "significance" to the visit of the United States warships.

"We are here simply as guests and onlookers," Rear Admiral J. C. Townsend told the United Press correspondent. "The fact that three United States warships are here is an indication of Anglo-American amity—it's a fine, friendly gesture, but I don't think it should be given too much international significance."

"We are certainly glad to be here for what is something of great importance in British strategy in the Far East."

Five British warplanes roared over Singapore island as the American fleet steamed dramatically up the straits in an oblique file. The planes dipped over the trim, gray cruisers while British guns barked a salute from the harbor.

FIST FIGHTING ENDS MEETING OF BUND

Legionnaires Start Meeting of Their Own in Midst of Session.

BUFFALO, N. Y., Feb. 13.—(P) A series of fist fights broke up a meeting being addressed here tonight by German-American Bund Leader G. Wilhelm Kunze.

A general riot call was sent out by police as American Legion members, making up nearly half the audience of 700, began battling with Bund members and sympathizers.

The flareup came after Kunze had been interrupted in the course of his address by former Assemblyman Frederick Hammer, of Buffalo, who ascended the rostrum and began delivering a speech of his own.

When Hammer asserted his forebears had left Germany because they "did not like the military aggression" of the nation, a voice in the hall shouted: "Coward!"

"Come outside with me and we'll settle that right now," Hammer shouted.

In a moment a half-dozen separate fights flared up throughout the hall, and women spectators fled screaming to the doors.

POISONER OF WIFE, FOR LOVE, GETS LIFE

MARSHALL, Ark., Feb. 13.—(P)—Hollis Ray, 60-year-old farmer and stockman, was sentenced to life imprisonment today for the slaying of his 50-year-old wife last June.

The state charged Ray bought the poison and fed it to his wife, seeking her death so he could marry a young North Carolina woman.

He was well known in the United States, where he had visited several times.

Prince Paul won fame in 1900 with a Paris exhibition of three pieces of sculpture, all of which are now owned by the Luxembourg Museum.

Among his later works were a well-known bust of Arnaldo Mussolini, late brother of Il Duce, and an equestrian statue of Tolstoi.

WRIGHT CASE JURY TO RESUME TODAY

Will Determine Whether He Was Sane or Insane at Time of Killings.

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 13.—(P)—The jury that convicted Paul A. Wright of manslaughter for shooting his wife, Evelyn, and John Kimmel, his business associate, will resume its sessions again tomorrow, this time to determine whether he was sane or insane at the time of the slayings.

Wright was convicted solely on his plea of not guilty. Under California law, his other plea of not guilty by reason of insanity became a separate issue for the jury's determination.

S. E. Roll, who prosecuted the case, said he would rest tomorrow when the sanity case is called for trial, throwing wholly on Defense Counsel Jerry Giesler the burden of proof that Wright was temporarily insane. Giesler pursued a course along that line in defending Wright, claiming his client suffered an emotional shock at finding his wife and Kimmel in an abnormal embrace the morning of November 9, 1937.

The sanity trial will be occupied solely with testimony of alienists for the state and defense and attorneys' arguments. It is expected to be finished by next Wednesday, at the latest.

If You Ain't Got That Swing-- Eye Machine Will Tell You Why

Optometrists Find That Persons Who Take Week To Read Book Friend Does in Night Usually Lack 'Rhythm' in Scanning Type—Device Records 'Jumps.'

If it takes you a week to read a book your best friend read in a night you might go in for "rhythm reading" tomorrow when Georgia optometrists bring their three-day convention to a "rhythmic" close at the Biltmore hotel. "Rhythm reading" is something new. It's something the optometrists believe furnishes—at least in part—the answer to child delinquency.

It's all done with a new machine which photographs the movement of your eyes as you read. If your eyes jump back too many times to catch the meaning of words you just "ain't got rhythm."

Records Eye "Jumps."

The machine catches the jumps, or "regressions" in the optometrists' phraseology—records them per minute and deals out statistics which, when measured, reveal how much energy is being wasted in your reading.

Another unit of the machine is designed to give you the needed rhythm. This is done through regular "treatments" in which the patient learns to read words and phrases flashed in regular order on a plate in the machine. Its aim is to teach the eye to move smoothly across the page without the "regressions."

"When we hear of a case where one person reads a book in one night while it takes another a week to read the same book, we always have been suspicious," Dr. Curtis Benton, of Atlanta, said last night.

Speeds up Rhythm.

"This machine has found that jerky reading, going back for meaning, is usually a sign of nervous energy that can be corrected," he added. "It's startling how many more words a person can read after he learns rhythm reading."

Optometrists from all parts of the south are attending the convention—the Georgia Optometrists Association 33d annual meeting. Tomorrow they are going to see and use the new "rhythm reading" machine.

School heads and medical authorities have been invited to attend. The optometrists believe the machine will eventually be used as a part of the regular physical examination for school children.

dren and that it will play a great part in wiping out delinquency.

"Children who are held back in their grades at school frequently are delinquent because of their poor reading habits and inability to comprehend words at the first glance," Dr. Benton said.

After the lesson in "rhythm reading," the optometrists will listen to musical rhythm of a dance orchestra as they wind up the convention with a banquet, floor show and dance at the Biltmore tomorrow night.

WHAT M.C. COBEN SAID TO HAROLD SNEAD, CHIEF PILOT OF TWA

"Do you find Camels really different from other cigarettes?"

Harold Snead gives his own answer—"Camels agree with me!" he says. And millions of other smokers agree with Pilot Snead, making Camels the largest-selling cigarette in America.

ON HIS SECOND MILLION MILES! Snead has been in the flying game for a long time, since the early "night mail" days. He knows what he's talking about when he says: "You've got to take care of yourself in this line of work. Ragged nerves are simply out. I smoke—all I want, but I stick to Camels. They never get on my nerves."

THIS VIEW over Pilot Snead's shoulder shows a few of the instruments that a flier has to watch. After a trip, Hal likes a Camel. "When I feel tired," he says, "I get a 'lift' with a Camel. You may think I am enthusiastic about Camels. Well, I am! All in all, here is a cigarette that agrees with me!"

"There's a big difference, sir. I've been flying since 1917 and smoking Camels since 1918. I can tell the difference in the way Camels hit the spot and agree with me! I know most of the American fliers who have records of several thousand hours in the air. The majority are steady smokers and prefer Camels. Years of experience have taught them that Camel is a really different cigarette!"

"Some people say all cigarettes are alike, Mr. Snead... Can Camels really be so different?"

TELLS ANOTHER...

"Camels agree with me"

AFTER THE BIG TWA SKYSLEEPER, above, was set down in Newark Airport, M. C. Coben was chatting with Hal Snead, chief pilot of the Eastern region, and Isabelle Judkins, air hostess, of Glendale, California. Hal pulled out a package of Camels and offered them around. And so they got to talking cigarettes!

Camels are a matchless blend of finer, MORE EXPENSIVE TOBACCOS—Turkish and Domestic

ON DUTY, Isabelle is a perfect hostess! "Most passengers on the TWA run prefer Camels," she says. "When conversation turns to cigarettes, someone always exclaims that Camel is certainly the cigarette that is different. The comment I often hear is 'Camels agree with me.'"

A BRISK SWIM IN THE POOL—then a "lift" with a Camel—and Isabelle Judkins, TWA hostess, finds her off-duty hours pass quickly and pleasantly. "When I got into aviation, I noticed that most of the top fliers preferred Camels. So I changed to Camels. And what a difference I found in Camels!" she says. "No ragged nerves. No scratchy throat. No 'cigarette' after-taste."

Last - Minute Suggestions for Seekers of Unique Valentines

MY DAY

By Eleanor Roosevelt

WASHINGTON, Friday.—I had a very pleasant luncheon with Mrs. Roper, wife of the secretary of commerce, after which Mrs. Scheider and I took a train for Philadelphia.

No one will ever know how grateful I am for train trips. I had three letters which required time to be answered. One was the monthly article for the New York state section of the "Digest," the publication of the woman's division of the Democratic national committee, one was a group of questions, which the women's division had sent over for their question and answer page in this same magazine, and the other was material for a broadcast which Dr. O. Latham Hatcher and I are going to do tomorrow. Somehow or other, no uninterrupted time to attend to things like the above ever seems to come my way, so I am grateful for a closed compartment on a train now and then.

My grandson, Bill Roosevelt, and his mother met me at the station and, while Mrs. Scheider dashed for the next train back to Washington, I proceeded to their new home. There Bill proudly showed me his playroom in which electric trains covered most of the floor. Most of the little boys and girls I know who have electric trains rely upon their elders to operate them. Not so with Bill. He knows all about the switches and turns them on and off himself, and he never leaves when he is through without disconnecting the electric cord. Here is a very responsible young man growing up under distinctly wise guidance.

After dinner, Mrs. Winsor and I drove to the church where the meeting of the National Negro Congress in celebration of the 75th anniversary of the signing of the Emancipation Proclamation was held. The church was packed and I was not prepared for the tremendous crowd outside.

It surged around us as we went in and, for a few minutes, I thought I had completely lost my companion. Long practice has taught me to move quickly in a crowd, and, of course, policeman opened a pathway. The pathway closed in behind me, so I had to stop at the door and look for a blonde head in the background. Finally, I saw her.

As usual, the music was beautiful. The young boy and girl who read excerpts from the Emancipation Proclamation and from a speech of Frederick Douglass, did so with great feeling.

This morning, before I left to return to Washington, the usual reporters were at the door. One young man filled my heart with joy when he said: "Can't you think of something interesting to tell us?" We can't think of any more questions to ask you.

This gave me the opportunity to remark that, in all probability, his readers felt as weary of manufactured news as I did.

On the 11:00 o'clock plane, which I took out of Camden, were Captain and Mrs. Rhode, so I was able to take them to their hotel here and have a little talk before returning to the White House for a large formal luncheon.

Your Figure, Madame!

By IDA JEAN KAIN.

RENO DIVORCEES ARE BLOND AND STREAMLINED.

February 14 . . . and Cupid is king for a day everywhere except in Reno. There the divorce business will proceed as usual and some beautiful petitioner will note the date in her diary as the one on which she received her decree.

Even in Reno the divorce will probably be followed by another marriage. The next husband is usually waiting just down the corridor and the bride-to-be trades her gardenias for orchids and says "I do" again.

Reno is so fascinating and its transient feminine population so glamorous that other women want to know all about them. There are no vital statistics on whether the average divorcee is blonde or brunette or streamlined or buxom, but the observations of a prominent divorce attorney confirm the impression that most of them are both streamlined and blonde. Some of them, he says, have assisted nature in the matter of coloring, and most are on a diet. Surprisingly enough, they are not the gold-digger type. You might also be interested to know that the average age is 32.

There are more marriages in Reno than divorces. Now, since the women who get the divorces and marry the same day are practically always streamlined, what we want to know is whether this has any bearing on the divorce. Is it that these women are so beautiful that they can get married, again, or could their streamlined beauty, indirectly, be the reason they are always losing their men?

The typical Reno divorcee is streamlined.

You can, of course, draw any conclusions that please you. The overweight woman might be inclined to find a close connection between ultra-streamlines and the road to Reno. Certainly the woman who is always thinking of her figure can be very irritating to the man who has a weakness for deep dish apple pie.

No doubt overeating is a factor in divorce. There is no denying that jumpy nerves and a nasty disposition—two undesirable results of a drastic diet—play their part in home breaking.

And, women who think too much about their beauty become selfish. They are apt to become preoccupied with looks and clothes and to lean toward the ornamental rather than toward companionship.

It would, however, be very foolish to assume that neglect of your figure and your looks will help you to keep your husband. There is too much proof to the contrary!

Let Your Valentine Be Beauty for a Beauty

By LILLIAN MAE.

A woman who stands in the forefront as creator of things of art and beauty, has a new idea to help you get your valentine message across. What could be more appropriate than her special valentine gift packages, which will convey your greetings as part of the gift itself?

Of course today is the day of red hearts and Cupid's darts, but I'm sure there are many who have delayed until the last minute making their selections, and it is for them that this article is written and this suggestion made.

The glamor accessories are encased in clever packages, each so designed that a hand-painted greeting card forms an integral part of the box cover. You merely slip the valentine card from its frame, write your personal message on the inside, then fit the card back into place, and your own words remain forever a part of your valentine gift.

One of the packages contains a slim, gold-terracotta compact and lipstick, beautifully enameled in tulip black or cloud white. A charming greeting card with a lacy background on which is set a real bouquet of painted felt flowers and ribbon or green cellophane, forms the top of the box in which the set is contained.

Another of her packages encases eau de toilettes, much like some candlestick flacons, in a box with its top a greeting card of a picture of a lady in pastel blue and pink, gracefully holding her mandolin and gazing at the table beside her, on which rests a letter, sealed with a red heart.

This same line of toilettries contains also colognes and body sachets—both with their own greeting cards, just ready for your personal valentine message.

I'm raving about these valentine suggestions, not just for their unique presentation, but because they rank with the very best—and better than the rest—in quality. You can't go wrong in selecting any one of these packages for your very best girl on this Valentine's Day.

Phone me at my office in The Constitution building for the names of the products and the shops at which they may be purchased.

The smart woman is so clever about making herself lovely that her husband thinks it is all natural. She doesn't neglect her looks, but she doesn't neglect her man, either.

The main thing to remember is that neither your looks nor your health is improved by the constant use of make-up. Radiant health is the basis of both beauty and the happy disposition which makes beauty in the eyes of the beholder.

Superficial beauty in itself is not enough to make marriage last. It may help you to get another husband—but how about keeping the one you have?

HEALTH TALKS

By DR. WILLIAM BRADY.

A QUART OF MILK A DAY.

Both city and country dietaries in the United States are more often deficient in calcium (lime) than in any other chemical element so far investigated, according to Henry C. Sherman, Ph.D., Sc.D., in the fourth (1933) edition of his famous textbook, "Chemistry of Food and Nutrition."

Milk and milk products are the best source of calcium for the human metabolism. A quart of milk contains approximately 17 grains of calcium. This is nearly enough calcium to maintain optimal metabolism, the highest possible degree of health, growth and strength, even in the rapidly growing infant or child, whose requirement is relatively and actually greater than the daily requirement of the mature adult.

By milk products we mean skim milk (milk from which the cream has been removed) or separator milk (so often fed to pigs by farmers whose knowledge of human nutrition is meager), cottage cheese, Dutch cheese, any other kind of cheese you like, cream, butter, custards, ice cream, soups containing milk, in short any beverage food, fish or recipe in which or with which milk or cream is used.

Sometimes poorly managed children acquire a distaste for milk. That is, for straight milk. It is unwise to compel a child to drink milk. But as Mary S. Rose, Ph.D., points out in her famous book "Feeding the Family," a quart of milk may be concealed as follows: 2-3 cup milk cooked in cereal; 1-3 cup in creamy egg on toast; 2-3 cup in cocoa; 1-4 cup evaporated milk in tomato soup; 1 ounce top milk in mashed potato; 1-4 cup milk in creamed asparagus tips; 1-4 cup in pudding and 1-4 cup in its custard sauce; 1-3 cup in pea soup; 1-4 cup in white sauce; 1-2 cup in a colored junket.

I like everything in the list except the cocoa. The less cocoa young children drink the better. Flavor the milk with chocolate if necessary, but do not let young children (under 16 years of age) have tea, coffee or cocoa as a beverage. Milk is the right beverage for a child. Or flavored milk flavored with sugar, caramel, fruit juices, chocolate, vanilla, banana, corn syrup, malt. Coffee, tea and cocoa are all nerve, heart and kidney stimulants, and for that reason not suitable for young children—though, mind, I consider these beverages perfectly healthful for anyone over 16 years of age; in fact I think it is silly for glibly folk to believe they can't drink tea, coffee or cocoa daily. Whoa! Time is up. Well, I'll continue this talk tomorrow and I'll tell you some things about milk you should know.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

Temperature.

Can a person live with a temperature of 106 degrees F.? (E. D. L.)

Answer—Many persons have had a body temperature of 106 degrees for hours and yet recovered. In sunstroke if the body temperature does not rise higher than 111.2 degrees F. recovery is fairly likely, though temperature higher than 111.2 usually proves fatal.

Monoxide.

In your article on Oxygen Deficit and Anhedonia you made a serious mistake—you said we often lack oxygen because the air is filled with carbon monoxide. You meant carbon dioxide, I am sure. . . . (Medical Fan.)

(Never.)—No, I said carbon monoxide in the air inhaled daily (a minute amount of carbon monoxide) crowds out oxygen—from the blood.

Superfluous Hair.

Is there anything other than electrolysis that will permanently erase superfluous hair? (T. E.)

Answer—X-ray treatment will do so, but physicians rarely are willing to use this treatment on the face.

A GAY ROUNDELAY.

This Is the Way We Wash Our Clothes.

"Oh, this is the day we wash our clothes, wash our clothes. . . . If that old nursery song is to be a gay roundelay instead of a dirge, a modern lady must give a more than cursory glance at her laundry facilities. We used to think those ladies in the ads who grin from ear to ear on wash-days were being slightly hypocritical until we really took a good look into the modern ways and means of laundering.

A lot has been said and written about kitchen planning but we'll bet that there's many a lady who'd be willing to forego a streamlined kitchen if she could have modern, up-to-the-minute laundry equipment. First she'd like a good, clean, light place to work, so obviously that old cellar cave will not do. A coat of white paint and a good indirect light may solve that problem, or perhaps a large pantry closet on the first floor may be made over into a small, but efficient laundry room.

Then, of course, she wants a good washing machine. Her purse will naturally dictate the purchase of the large item, but she may paint and a good indirect light may solve that problem, or perhaps a large pantry closet on the first floor may be made over into a small, but efficient laundry room.

And Plenty Of It.

If possible, she wants to own an automatic ironer—one of those amazing machines that she can sit down to and, with practically no effort, do a thorough professional job of pressing in no time at all. Barring that delightful acquisition, she should see that her ironing board is stable and that her iron is streamlined to save her cramped fingers and sore wrists. And here again, light and plenty of it is important!

And then she must look to the little "gadgets" that can solve many of her laundry problems. An automatic sprayer for sprinkling the clothes before ironing is the invention that gives forth a fine mist of water to dampen the clothes to the proper degree for easy pressing. Or, without this, a spray-cork to fit almost any bottle is a great time saver. And there's an adjustable frame for drying knitted garments smoothly and without shrinkage that any self-respecting knit-it-yourself person should have. Clothes sticks for getting those hot garments out of soapy water, a canvas bag that hangs on her clothesline and moves along with her as she hangs the clothes, should be on her list. And she might even consider having her husband hang a pulley-type clothesline so that she may stand in one place (preferably sheltered from too much sun or wind) and hang away to her heart's content. And then she wants a reel for the cord of her iron so that it will always be where she wants it.

How about a golf date next Monday afternoon?

TRIM AND TAILORED DAY-TIME FROCK.

Look your slimmest and loveliest in this pretty basque frock designed on princess lines. The gored skirt flares prettily and the basque bodice buttoned high to the neck emphasizes the high bustline. You'll feel years younger in this dress and wear it through the spring as your favorite frock. Make it up in a pretty printed rayon or silk crepe and dramatize its youthful lines with contrasting linen collars and cuffs. Further contrast is smart in the buttons or zipper closing and in the belt. College girls and young businesswomen will both choose this dress for daytime wear. The pattern includes complete and detailed sewing instructions.

Barbara Bell Pattern No. 1471-B is designed for sizes 12, 14, 16, 18 and 20. Corresponding bust measurements 30, 32, 34, 36 and 38. Size 14 (32) requires 4 1/2 yards of 39-inch material and 3-8 yard contrast.

BOB JONES FIRES PAR-BREAKING 66 HERE YESTERDAY

Nearly 600 Play on Three Courses; Record Is Set.

Two hundred twenty-five golfers played the East Lake course Sunday afternoon. It was a new record for the course. Also a new record was set in the number of foursomes participating in the dogfight, a total of 22 beating by one the former record of 21.

Bobby Jones played during the afternoon and turned in a score of 66. He had 30 on the front nine and 36 on the back nine. He played with Charlie Black as his partner against Charlie Yates and Dick Garlington. This same four played a match last week which ended all square. However, in this match Bobby and Charlie took their rivals into camp.

The winning foursome in the dogfight had a score of 120. They were Dr. A. O. Lynch, Dr. H. W. Ridley, Joe Turner and Joe Lynch. Second with a score of 123 were Charles Yates, B. F. Guy, W. L. Whisenant and J. E. Nash.

J. A. Whately, H. King, F. B. Quillian and L. P. Taylor were next with a score of 124.

Two foursomes tied with a score of 125. They were P. G. Lombard, R. D. Ison, W. F. Ison, George Sugge and Dr. H. P. McDonald, Dr. Ed Ballenger, Jesse Draper and J. S. Blick.

Three foursomes were next with a score of 126. They were Harold Sargent, Chess Lagomarsino, A. T. Bassett, Sam Thompson; Dan Yates, Bill Cromer, Gene Brooks, J. E. Hutson; Tommy Barnes, C. W. Carver, Huston White and J. D. Wilcox.

Three foursomes tied with a score of 127. They were George Sargent Jr., Elgin Poole, J. J. McConnehey, J. P. Wilhoite; F. H. Witting, A. P. McElroy, L. U. West, Dr. W. E. Band, Keith Conway; Dr. B. G. Gay, S. M. Haw and Bob Singletary.

Stanley Holditch Cards 69 at Capital City.
Stanley Holditch, former Georgia Tech star, shot a 69 on the Capital City course yesterday. This was two under par and one of the best rounds played at Capital City in some time.

Holditch had a 31 coming in. He had a penalty stroke on seven and eight.

Par out 443 543 445-36
Holditch out 443 553 554-38

Nine shared first place in the blind bogey with 76s. They were: W. M. Mitchell, Fred Minich, A. O. Mitchell, T. C. McDuffie Jr., C. J. Currie, Jesse Roberts, Blair Foster, Frank Ridley and Robert H. White Jr.

Tied for second place with 75s were W. W. Owens, M. K. Hunter, C. N. Dannals Jr. and W. E. Beresford. Third place went to the following with 77s: Allen Watkins, A. S. Irby Jr., C. L. R. Nichols, Tate Earnest and Russell Bridges senior.

Roby Robinson and Dave Black, playing together, shot 71s Saturday. They had a best ball of 65. One hundred and seventy-nine played the course yesterday.

Four Share Prize At Ansel Park.

Four shared first place with 75s in the Ansel Park blind bogey Sunday afternoon. They were L. H. Hyemman, D. G. Hix, A. O. Wilhoite and Cannon Young.

Tied for second place were William Lohse, Horace Beck, E. L. Robinson, Riley Elder, E. E. Thames and E. B. Taylor. All had 74s except the last-named, who had a 76.

Low net prize went to H. S. Rawlings and Beverly Daniels, both with 65s.

More than 150 played the course yesterday.

Local Stars Vie on Mat

Three wrestling matches feature tonight's program at the Spring Street arena.

The top match brings together two Atlanta boys, one a former southern light-heavyweight champion, Tarzan Jordan, the champion, battles Jack McAdams, who has had an impressive record over the past three years.

McAdams has defeated most of the better light-heavyweights and wrestled Gus Kallin, champion, to a draw. His record shows only two defeats in two years. The meeting of the home town boys is promising.

Red Dugan, Chattanooga, and Roy Reynolds, a pair of bone-benders, meet in the semi-windup. Dr. Ralph Smith and Speedy Moran, both rough and ready wrestlers, will open the show at 8:15 o'clock.

Georgia Resident Once Broke Targets Using Bow and Arrow

Lest some of Atlanta's skeet stars become satisfied with the way they are shooting, it may be well to remind them that there is a resident of Georgia who became so proficient, in years past, that he was able to break three out of five targets with bow and arrow.

This story came out of a recent field trial and is not to be confused with the stories some fellows tell about their dogs.

It is not easy to swallow, of course, when you think of the tale of the dog that provided larder for his owner with no gun having to be fired.

This dog trailed a covey to a haystack and the owner, curious, followed. He did so with mingled emotions, figuring, perhaps, the dog had run a cat to cover.

Looking around to see if the owner was following, Old Spot bored into the haystack. There was quite a commotion, with hay scattering on all sides. Then Old Spot backed out and deposited a bird on the ground.

He repeated this procedure until he had accounted for the entire covey. So elated was the owner he did no more hunting that day and, thereafter, went into the fields without a gun, allowing Old Spot to maneuver coveys into haystacks. He thus saved shot and shell and wear and tear on his gun.

As I said in the beginning, it is a bit difficult to countenance the bow and arrow story in the face of the tales told by the bird dog fanciers.

But I know it is true, because L. D. Bolton, of Mansfield, showed me the very bow and some of the arrows he used.

A FEW STRAIGHTS.
Shooting skeet with bow and arrow naturally was only a novelty with Bolton, who has a home at Mansfield and a place near Albany where he raises dogs, and hunts.

Actually, Bolton was a great skeet star in years past. He has a 20-gauge gun with a few interesting straight runs notched on it.

He made the runs at the Detroit Country Club where he was, in recent years, chairman and instructor. At one time and another, his record of straights included 141, 160, 167 and 224.

And it was only recently that the latter run was eclipsed with 20-gauge gun. It stood, as you might well imagine, for some time.

Bolton was rather pleased with his shooting. That is, until he went to Lordship for the first time in 1932. He broke 97x100.

Well, there were seven prizes. And Bolton's 97 did not qualify him for one of the seven!

That almost caused him to go back to using bow and arrow exclusively on the darting clay pigeons.

I personally would like to see Benson Freeman Jr., Clint (Lonesome Pine) Davis, Add Smith, Clyde King, Buddy Jones, Lon Davis, J. L. Franklin, Abe Moore, Jack Tway, Al Freese and some of the other boys break 97 and fail to land in the money with seven prizes available. I am afraid the air would be blue with something else besides powder smoke.

CAN DO IT WITH MIRRORS.

Shooters will be interested in some of Bolton's observations as to how skeet should be shot, so to speak.

Others who naively associate skeet with the expression "am-scray" will be interested, too, if they ever handle a gun in the fields.

For skeet shooting is great practice for bird shooting, and a gun is handled, in either case, much the same way.

"The hands should be under the gun—as if some body had handed you a baby. The knuckles should point toward the ground at an angle, with elbow close to the body," Bolton points out.

"Stand with left foot forward. When the hand goes under the gun, with elbow close, it turns the trigger finger over and you must pull the trigger with the side of the finger. You raise and lower the gun with a wrist and arm motion.

"You can do it with mirrors. Get in front of a mirror and sight. Then you can tell if the pupil of the eye is right down the rib. You also can see how logical it is to hold the gun as you would hold a baby out from you."

Bolton has a callous on the side of his index finger just above the first joint from pressing the trigger. This was caused by years of steady shooting.

The ordinary amount of shooting would not cause a callous and a shooter would be pressing the trigger right in using the side of his finger.

There's no other way to fire a gun naturally with elbow close in to the body.

Let the tips fall where they may. The only reason this correspondent is not particularly interested is because he is thinking very strongly of using bow and arrow hereafter. Why break 'em the easy way?

MUST HAVE THAT SWING.

If you want to break many targets, the follow through in skeet is as important as it is in golf. It is very easy for a golfer to stop his swing after connecting with the ball. And it's easier for a skeet shooter to forget the target is moving and stop his gun as he pulls the trigger.

All this amounts to is a miss of a yard or so. The shot can't travel fast enough to catch the flying target unless the gun is kept swinging on a level.

Skeet has been holding up amazingly well in Atlanta and in the state over a period of years. In fact, it is growing. There are a number of private clubs in Atlanta now.

The two clubs open to the public here are the West End Club, at Fort McPherson and the Capitol Gun Club. Both are fine clubs, well appointed and visitors are assured of feeling right at home from the start.

IF CRAZE SHOULD SPREAD.

If the bow and arrow craze should spread in skeet, some of our better citizens might resemble walking pin cushions. An arrow shot into the air will fall to earth I know not where. It may be just as well to forget there was anybody ever lived who could break skeet targets with such weapons. Because none of the Atlanta stars are young enough to start. By the time they had broken the first target, they would be too old to enjoy it.

LLOYD BROWN SIGNS.

ST. PAUL, Feb. 12.—(P)—The St. Paul American Association baseball club gined Lloyd Brown, 35-year-old former Cleveland Indians southpaw pitcher. He is a 10-year man in the major leagues, and was a last agent. Cleveland released him last fall.

HAMBURG, Germany, Feb. 14. (UP)—Ben Foord, South African heavyweight, today signed to fight Walter Neusel, of Germany, here, on April 16. Foord recently was outpointed in 12 rounds by former Champion Max Schmeling.

TECH WILL PLAY STRONG AUBURN FIVE AT 'PLAINS'

Bulldogs Invade Tuscaloosa To Face Improved Tidemen Tonight.

Georgia Tech's unpredictable basketball team must overcome their "foreign court" complex tonight when they move against surprisingly strong Auburn at the Plains in a Southeastern conference test. Auburn's 34-27 victory over Georgia Saturday night and the fact that the Jackets twice were whipped by Tulane and L. S. U. on a recent road trip along with the Jackets' failure to whip Vandy by only five points at Nashville Saturday night indicates Coach Roy McDuffie's team is in for a rough evening with the Tigers, who have won 12 of 13 games this season.

Auburn is unbeaten in conference ranks, leading the pack with five wins. Georgia likewise draws a hard assignment tonight, invading Tuscaloosa to meet a steadily improving Alabama team that numbers among its recent accomplishments a pair of wins over L. S. U. The Tidemen also extended Kentucky at Lexington Saturday night.

Tonight's games should serve to put the Jackets and Bulldogs in line for their clash at Athens Saturday night. Tech won the first of the series, played in Atlanta.

Tech slips down to Gainesville Thursday for a crack at Florida's clever "Gators" before moving up to Athens on Saturday.

The Bulldogs expect to make it hot for the Jackets at Athens and will have the advantage of their court, a most important factor in basketball.

Standings of Southeastern conference basketball teams to date:

TEAM	W.	L.	P.
Auburn	12	0	0
Georgia Tech	5	5	0
Kentucky	4	4	0
Mississippi	4	4	0
Tulane	4	4	0
Tennessee	3	3	0
Mississippi State	3	3	0
Georgia	3	3	0
Florida	3	3	0
Louisiana State	3	3	0
Vanderbilt	3	3	0
Alabama	3	3	0

Major Leaguers In Annual Trek To Spring Sites

By SID FEDER.

NEW YORK, Feb. 13.—(P)—The time has come for the pitchers, catchers, managers and magicians of the major leagues to trade such things as winter overcoats, hunting rifles and hot stove cracker barrels for tickets to some-where in Florida, Louisiana, Mississippi, California or, if it concerns the Chicago Cubs, Catalina Island.

Many already in their training camps or are on the way there.

Of course, it means that the off-season laziness around is finished, and that from here on in, the business of balls and strikes must be strictly minded. But it's nice work if you can get it, the pay is good, and there's plenty to eat. So who's going to fuss about such hard labor as chasing a horsehide sphere around some sunny lot in Dixie.

For instance, while a lot of us stay up north, wrapped to the chin in woollens and well-supplied with aspirin, there'll be a considerably more fortunate party of New York Giants (who can take their winter or leave it alone) showing off Tuesday night for Hot Springs, Ark. Two catchers and five pitchers will be in the party, along with Secretary Eddie Brannick (lucky guy) and Vice President Leo Bondy.

Or if it's Florida you want to hear about, consider Mickey Cochran and some of his Detroit Tigers as Elden Auker, Schoolboy Rowe, Hankspankus Greenberg, Jo Jo White and Billy Rogell who are already at the Lakeland camp, although the Detroiters aren't due there until March 6. They may not be training yet, but you can't say they have to shovel snow from around home plate.

Or shed a tear for Jimmy Dykes. Manager James picked up a store of those two-by-six black cigars with which he's now to cloud the atmosphere and is now aboard a ship, en route to the White Sox camp at Pasadena. He started out from his bowling alleys about a week ago, and is probably looking at the view of Central America around the Panama Canal right now.

Here's the list:

In the following paragraphs the club, date first squad to arrive and camp are given:

- Philadelphia A's, February 22, Lake Charles, La.
- Boston Bees, February 24, Bradenton, Florida.
- Chicago Cubs, February 24, Catalina Island.
- Phillies, February 25, Biloxi, Miss.
- Cincinnati, February 26, Tampa, Fla.
- New York Yankees, February 27, St. Petersburg, Fla.
- Washington, February 27, Orlando, Fla.
- Cleveland, February 27, New Orleans.
- New York Giants, February 28, Baton Rouge, La.
- St. Louis Cards, March 2, St. Petersburg.
- Boston Red Sox, March 3, Sarasota, Florida.
- Chicago White Sox, March 3, Pasadena, California.
- March 4, Clearwater, Fla.
- Pittsburgh, March 5, San Bernardino, California.
- Detroit, March 6, Lakeland, Fla.
- St. Louis Browns, March 7, San Antonio, Texas.

DEMOREST BEATS SAM SNEAD, 4-3

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 13.—(UP)—Jimmy Demarest, 27-year-old professional from Houston, Texas, today won his first major tournament by defeating Sam Snead, White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., 4 and 3, in the 36-hole finals of the $5,000 San Francisco match play open golf tournament.

Demarest, who smashed his way to the title over the biggest names in the tournament, took top money of $1,000. Snead, as runner-up, received $500.

The Texan never let Snead get ahead in the finals today and consistently outplayed his opponent. Taking a 3-up lead on the first nine with a subpar 35, Demarest went to lunch with a two-hole advantage. On the 19th he put down an eight-foot putt to go 3-up when Snead was trapped. They halved the rest of the outgoing nine on the afternoon round.

Demarest picked up another hole at the 29th to go 4 up when Snead drove into the woods, recovered and blew a two-foot putt.

Snead rallied with a birdie 3 on the 30th and the next two were halved.

Demarest, who has been in the tournament, took top money of $1,000. Snead, as runner-up, received $500.

EVENLY MATCHED COURT MACHINES TO DRAW THRON

Medintz, Bellamy Rejoin Rival Teams; Cubs, Reds Clash at 7:30.

By MELVIN PAZOL.

The premier basketball attraction of the week, the return battle between J. P. C. and Warren, is billed at 8:30 o'clock tonight at the Warren arena. The Warren Reds will clash with the J. P. C. Cubs in a preliminary game scheduled to start at 7:30 o'clock. The largest crowd of the season here is expected for the colorful card.

A study of statistics of last Wednesday's game which Warren won by 3 points shows that the difference between the two teams is of microscopic nature. The two battled it out for 40 minutes with the outcome in doubt until the final whistle.

The 37-30 advantage held by Warren five minutes before the game ended was the largest margin gained by either team at any point.

The Progressives were just getting over a wave of injuries last week, but will be at full strength for tonight's game. Gabby Greenberg, who previously had been remarkably successful in guarding Virlyn Moore, ace Warren forward, was just getting over an attack of pleurisy, and found the pace too hot to keep up with Virlyn in the first half. He got down to business, though, during the remainder of the game, with the result that Moore failed to register a point during the last half. Then, too, Minsk, Ginsberg and Hyman Katz were not in the best of condition, and Barney Medintz was out of town.

BELLAMY RETURNS.
Ed Bellamy, sturdy Warren guard, missed last week's game because of the death of his father, Major A. C. Bellamy, who passed away the day before the game. Bellamy will probably be back with the team tonight to aid Hugh Luby and Gene Warlick with guarding duties.

Hugh Luby, former Cracker, who signed his contract with the Oakland club of the Pacific Coast league last week, played a great defensive game for Warren. The fact that Moore and Copeland could shoot field goals accurately was well known to all, but the way Luby guarded the J. P. C. forwards was the great surprise of the game. Hugh played a neat floor game and passed well to aid his mates materially in their point-gathering performance.

Coach Joe Bean was high in praise of Luby. He believes Luby, ex-Cracker second baseman, to be one of the best guards ever to play in the south. Bean stated he would probably start the same lineup tonight, even if Bellamy did return to the squad.

MEDINTZ BACK.
Barney Medintz, who played opposite Morris Katz as a first string forward for the Progressives during the early part of the season, returned to Atlanta yesterday and practiced with the squad for the first time in a month. Medintz was out of the lineup for two weeks with a bum knee, and has been away on business.

He played well in practice at the J. P. C. gym yesterday afternoon, but Coach Shep Lauter stated he would start the same five which played last Wednesday's game. Medintz will be available for relief duty.

The Progressives are anxious to even the count with Warren. Maybe last week's defeat did them some good in removing the handicap of an undefeated record to uphold. Except for Greenberg's injured thumb, all the Progressive players are in the best of shape.

Last week's victory was Warren's first over the J. P. C. in seven games between the two teams during the last three years. If they can play the same brand of ball they played last week they may be able to make it two straight, and enter the tournament Thursday as favorites.

McDougall, Bauer Win at Palm Beach

PALM BEACH, Fla., Feb. 13.—(P)—Marian McDougall, of Portland, Ore., ousted Laddie Irwin, of Montclair, N. J., from the Everglades Club women's golf tournament by 5 and 3 today in the first round of match play.

Jean Bauer, of Providence, R. I., another favorite, defeated Elizabeth Wing, of Evanston, Ill., 2 up; Dorothy Traung, of San Francisco, eliminated Audrey Phillips, of Westbury, N. Y., 4 and 3, and Sally Guth, of Webster Grove, Mo., won over Mrs. Joseph Lawlor, of New Rochelle, N. Y., 4 and 3.

White, golfing here while waiting for the return of the "Tigers" training camp to open, said Detroit needs pitching. If Vernon Kennedy, recently acquired from Chicago, comes through or Schoolboy Rowe surprises by returning to form, he added, the Tigers will make things hot for the Yanks.

"Kennedy is a good pitcher and is bound to help Elden Auker, Tommy Bridges and the others with the mound burden," White continued. "But Schoolboy Rowe is the boy who could pin back the Yankees' ears. Why if Schoolboy should turn up with his arm in good shape, I'd bet even money on the Tigers to beat out the Yanks, and feel like I was making a sucker of the fellow who was betting with me."

"Rowe to my mind could have been the greatest pitcher in the American league if he hadn't been troubled by his arm and by the constant fear that he was going to hurt it. When he was right, he could throw that pill past the best of them, and he didn't need that much-advertised change of pace either. In fact, Rowe made a mistake trying to pitch 'smart ball.' He had control and all he had to do was rear back and let 'em have it like Walter Johnson and Lefty Grove did for years, and like Lefty Gomez and Dizzy Dean still do."

"What's the use of mixing in a slow one when the batter can't see your fast one?"

White said Rudy York, Detroit's young catcher, has the best throwing arm he has seen on a catcher or outfielder.

In and out of the Detroit lineup since 1930, White believes he will have one of his best seasons this year. The Tiger outfield has not been a settled proposition best years, he said, and there will be no exception this season.

INSTALLMENT XXVIII.

She nodded silently. "Oh, it isn't as dreadful as that," she told him. Judge Pompey reached mechanically for his plug of tobacco and fortified himself with a generous bite. "And this little piece of change is for your trousseau, I reckon," he offered, not without some difficulty.

"Well—you see, there's no date set and may not be for a long time. This is confidential, but I've about decided to invest a little money in Terry's business. No! He didn't suggest it—I did. In fact, I had a dreadful time getting him to consent. You've no idea how well he has done here. If he had a chance to expand a little..."

"That's his line, not yours!" the judge exploded angrily. "I recognize the Cantine brand. If I thought... See here, Caradad. Pomphrette spoke in a more subdued tone. 'You've always been a level-headed girl. I won't pretend that I don't hate to see you throw yourself away on Cantine. To be perfectly candid, I hope he's lynched or something beforehand. But you're your own boss. You know that. Same as you know a mean horse can't rear when somebody has his upper lip in a twitch... but you can't stop me from doing a hell of a lot of thinking. I want you to come clean with me, girl. If you want Cantine, I want you to have him—have anything in this world that will make you happy. But I want to get the low-down, sort of. Did you tell him that you had... a fair amount of money?'"

"Yes." "Roughly." "That's good," Pomphrette chuckled. "If I had a few millions, I'd speak of them mightily reverently. I reckon that's about the time he consented to be reasonable about letting you do a little investing in the business. Was it?"

"No," Caradad defended. "he didn't know at that time I had more than a few thousand I wanted to play with." "How many thousand? Twenty-five, judging from your wire?" "Of course."

"Well, if he's as clever as I take him to be, he won't be long in finding out that your cash balance is acting like a thermometer in the sun. I'll bet you won't have to argue with him any more. And that's that. Now, here's another one."

"Yes?" "Your Daddy and I were always—like that. The judge held up two fingers, pressed tightly together. "I loved him like a brother. I always advised him about things the best I knew how and he trusted me, he did. He'd tell you so, if he were here now."

"Uncle Pompey!" Caradad laid an affectionate hand on his arm. There was a suspicious quiver in her voice. "As if I didn't know that, my dear. Of course he trusted you—the same as I do. Always."

"Then, maybe, you'll be willing to listen to the old man. Don't start shoveling money into that boy's pants pockets. Go slow. Keep your hands on the wallet strap. He'll respect you all the more when he finds out that you're a good business woman. I think I've made a good one out of you. So keep your head. Tell him you want to look into this and into that. If he's on the level, he'll be glad to hear it. Is that a promise?"

"I understand. It's a promise."

"Then here's more. Before you get married—see me. If you think you should make a settlement on him to save his feelings, that's all right. You can afford to be liberal. But you'd be a fool to let him or any other man get his hands on your money. You want to keep the bulk of it in your own possession. It can be done. I'll show you how, when the time comes. Would you promise me to do that?"

"Yes," Caradad agreed soberly. "Give him any figures?" "Roughly."

"That makes me feel a heap better. Yes, sir. If I ever were to see John Vardell again... well, I couldn't look him in the eye if I'd have fallen down on the job he left me. If you'll stick to that one bargain, that lets me out I'll turn over your cash and keep my mouth shut."

"Goodness! It isn't in currency, is it?"

"Not quite. But it's something the bank will like just as well."

"I wish we could get rid of it then. But I'm afraid the banks will be closed before we could get there."

"There's a bank over in the district, a good one, too, that'll open the door for us after hours. I'd more than make good my bid of it. You'll have to come along."

"I'll be ready just as soon as I make a phone call, Uncle."

"Okay. Reckon I might as well wash up here, if you don't mind my using one end of your roller towel."

Within an hour, Caradad Vardell was graciously acknowledged as a valued customer of one of the city's larger trust companies. The bank was only too happy to be of service to any friend of Judge Pomphrette.

At the lunch table later, Caradad observed, "Uncle Pompey, I called Terry while you were washing. He's going to have dinner with me tonight at the hotel—or somewhere. So are you, dear."

"I am, am I? Did you tell him so?"

"No. I didn't say you were here. Just told him that I wanted to talk over some matters—that I had heard from you."

"The judge pushed away his plate impatiently. "Don't tell me that I'm supposed to bestow any parental blessings. I'll do nothing of the sort."

"No. But you are going to be very nice to him—for my sake."

Terry Cantine's face was grim when he hung up his telephone receiver. Caradad's message had been brief. She had heard from home and would he please come to dinner at the Rushmore, or call for her there if he preferred to eat elsewhere. That meant that a settlement was assured and that he could dismiss the calamity that had been hanging over his head.

That part was all right. But there was... Gerta.

Whatever his other failings, Terry clung to a few ideals of sportsmanship. If his engagement to Caradad were to be treated as bona fide and shared with the public, he owed it to Gerta to see that she had the news from him. There was a slight danger of Gerta going hysterical—but this was going to be different. He rang up Gerta's apartment and found that she was at home. There was no mistake about her pleasure over Terry's proposed call.

He revolved the coming ordeal carefully in his mind during the cross-town trip. It would be easy to hint to Gerta that it all was nothing more than a business arrangement—temporary, if he cared to make it so. But he dismissed that thought almost at once. If he were going to play the game, he'd play it right.

Gerta, unknowingly, helped him by bringing up the subject on the heels of a smiling greeting.

"I wanted so much to see you, Terry! I think I know something that may interest you and... Oh! You've had some good news, haven't you, dear? You look so much better!"

"Well... yes." "Didn't I tell you so? Gerta laughed. "I knew something would turn up. It doesn't pay to worry so. And, now, I suppose my news won't interest you so much."

"Go ahead," Terry lighted his pipe, glad of a brief respite.

"Well, it's about Dad. I was so provoked the other night when I found out that she wanted to help you and you wouldn't let her. Terry, I have a suspicion that she's rich!"

"And what makes you think that?"

"Because I happen to know that she has a front suite at the Rushmore! You know what that means?"

"You're right," he returned quietly. "And she has."

"I've suspected it, from several little things and..."

Gerta ended her words abruptly. She leaned back in her chair and fixed her large dark eyes on Terry's face.

"So that is the answer. You changed your mind... after all." "Yes."

There was a deep silence, until Gerta spoke again. "I can understand. But I wish, Terry, that you would satisfy my curiosity on one point—is Dad—what you and I would call really rich?"

"Yes," Terry discarded his pipe. He rested his elbows on the arms of the chair, pressed the tips of his manicured fingers together, bent a level gaze upon Gerta from under his lowered brows.

"I think..." he began slowly, "I think you and I have always laid our cards on the table... with each other. It's best to do it now. You may be hearing something about Dad and me, Gerta. I'd rather be the one to tell you. For a good many reasons."

Gerta's eyes met his without wavering. He had been correct in assuming that her pulse would not fail her. "You mean," she suggested in a flat voice, "that you intend to marry her?"

"Sounded."

"Oh, no." "I think I'm rather glad... of that. Not that it makes any difference. A faint smile touched her red lips. "That was rather fast work, Terry. Even for you. I don't blame you... since the stakes must have been worth while."

UNCLE RAY'S Corner

THE PEOPLE OF INDIA.

Next to China, India contains more people than any other country in the world. More than 350,000,000 human beings live in India, almost three times as many as in the United States. India is only about half as large as the United States.

the whole caste system of India arose from those efforts.

Long ago there were four main castes. Highest of all was the Brahman, which contained priests, lawmakers and others. Another high caste was made up of soldiers and their families.

A very large caste was composed of farmers and skilled workers. The lowest caste (known as Sudras) contained servants and others who performed work of a lowly kind.

Cooks were not classed as Sudras in homes of people of the first three castes. A Brahman would not eat food cooked by a Sudra. Indeed, no one lower than a Brahman could cook for a Brahman family!

Today there are hundreds of special castes in India. There are rules that a person must not marry outside his caste, or earn his living in any way not proper to his caste. These rules are not always followed.

A man can lose his caste if he marries a widow, if he turns Moslem or Christian, or if he eats beef, pork or fowl in public. To lose caste means that his friends and relatives will not visit his home, or invite him to be entertained in their homes.

TARZAN THE FEARLESS

No. 19

The Zambesi watched the safari file past, his eyes popping at the prospect of so many captives. When the last porter had disappeared, he left his hiding place and hurried homeward. Soon he would return with a horde of warriors to intercept the travelers.

The three whites gave little thought to danger, believing themselves equipped for all emergencies. Mary Brooks was thinking only of her father, who had gone into the wilderness and had not returned. It was she who had insisted on going in search of him.

Bob Murray was anxious to bring the expedition to a hasty conclusion. He and Mary were betrothed; they were to be married when they returned to America. But Jeff Biggers, the guide, was in no hurry. Perhaps, if he had time, he could win Mary for himself.

Jeff dropped behind Mary. He liked to watch the stride of her lithe, trim figure. And thus they marched, these three, each set upon his own purpose. And the thoughts that burned in their minds blinded them to the perils that lurked in the African wilderness.

Copyright, 1938, for The Constitution and the North American Newspaper Alliance, Inc.

NEW YORK, Feb. 13.—With the first quarter of 1938 half over, the business situation, taken as a whole, shows no improvement.

The rate of recession has tapered off and there is perhaps a slightly more hopeful feeling among businessmen, but it is not one that can be reflected in statistics. The accepted business indexes lost ground again last week, if the computation is compensated for seasonal influences.

It is interesting to note that there are wide differences among the various sections of the country and among different industries. That is always more or less true in any depression. It shows up in the January figures for department store sales by Federal Reserve districts, in which the northern and western sections make a poor showing compared with the southern. Atlanta and Dallas, for example, report favorable comparisons both with December and with January a year ago, while Chicago, Cleveland, Kansas City and San Francisco sustained losses.

Affected Districts.

It is the most highly industrialized districts which have been most seriously affected, and the relative prosperity of the farmers has not been sufficient to offset the inroads of recession on the manufacturing centers.

An analysis of industries, based on chain store sales, shows the greatest dropping off in distribution of general merchandise, with mail order and apparel shops close behind. On the other hand, the drug dispensers are doing better and the shoe dealers much better. A shortage is even reported in certain lines of leather. Cotton mill activity has increased slightly more than is seasonal. Eventually, a shortage of goods all around will develop, but it does not appear to be imminent.

The present depression is most pronounced in the United States. It originated here, but more or less the rest of the world is coming under its influence.

Depression In Britain.

The British are experiencing it, as is testified to by the decline in the London economist's index of activity from 113.1-2 in August and September to 110.1-2 in December. British industrial stocks fell to a new low on the London exchange last week, and the railroad stocks are only slightly above their mid-January low.

Political and economic conditions in Great Britain differ widely from those in this country, but financial and industrial changes in one are affected by those in the other. A year or two ago, the New York market was following London; it is the other way around now.

Canada is more directly concerned with the ebb and flow of the tide on this side of the border, and is inevitable because of the close connections between the two countries. The setback in Canada, however, is very much more moderate than it is here.

Depression In Britain.

The British are experiencing it, as is testified to by the decline in the London economist's index of activity from 113.1-2 in August and September to 110.1-2 in December. British industrial stocks fell to a new low on the London exchange last week, and the railroad stocks are only slightly above their mid-January low.

Political and economic conditions in Great Britain differ widely from those in this country, but financial and industrial changes in one are affected by those in the other. A year or two ago, the New York market was following London; it is the other way around now.

Canada is more directly concerned with the ebb and flow of the tide on this side of the border, and is inevitable because of the close connections between the two countries. The setback in Canada, however, is very much more moderate than it is here.

Dollar Future.

In Europe, there is great uncertainty about the future of the dollar. Over there, there are still many who believe that further devaluation is in the cards. That only adds to the confusion and makes more difficult restoration of international trade, which, if it could be brought about, would go a long way toward checking the present recession from developing into a major depression.

It is believed that the administration at Washington is firmly set against any fresh devaluation. That being so, why would it not be well to say so? Perhaps saying so would not be enough, but, if congress could be persuaded to fix the price of gold at its present rate and withdraw the authority of the executive to change it, one disturbing factor in the world outlook would be removed.

It would be a bold step to take when nowhere else has any such stability been achieved, but the risk would be slight and the probable gain great. If all nations wait for a world economic conference to come to an agreement, they may wait too long.

CENSUS OF FOREIGNERS.
